Destroyers Move Into Harbor to Reenforce Garrison
LAND BLUEJACKETS
Unconfirmed Reports Say Chinese Have Edge Near Wall

BULLETIN
Shanghai—(AP)—Japan choked Shanghai's Whangpoo river with a score of war ships, scattered others to the mouth of the Yangtze and poured between 500 and 1,000 blue-jackets into this city and in the newest Sino-Japanese war crisis to night.

Tokyo answered today with a warlike display of naval power that Japanese considered the assassinations of a Japanese naval officer and seaman at Shanghai Monday.

The advance guard of the Japanese first fleet—12 destroyers and three light cruisers—anchored at Shanghai and landed a detachment of 500 marines to reinforce the Japanese garrison.

Tanks and other mechanized equipment of war were hurried ashore. Two seamen were included for use in getting an airfield into shape as a base for operations. The resulting increased tension in central China was matched by a reported major battle between Chinese and Japanese troops at Nankow pass, 30 miles northwest of Peiping.

Unconfirmed Chinese reports were that the Japanese army was being defeated. Japanese said the Chinese city of Nankow, core of the area where forces of the two nations have been massing for two weeks, was in flames. The Japanese were said to be rushing reinforcements from Peiping.

Arrival of the Japanese warships at Shanghai, coupled with evacuation of Japanese civilians along the Yangtze river, indicated Japan was preparing for a large-scale undeclared war in the rich central China commercial area.

Tokyo considered the slaying of the two Japanese as having gravely endangered the slender chances for peace between the two oriental nations. Chinese contended the Japanese were at fault in the clash.

Japan also cited as an indication that the Chinese government intended to wage war two disquieting reports from China—that Chinese would attempt to recapture Tientsin and Peiping, and that the central Chinese government was ready to move its capital from Nanking to Hankow for greater safety.

Japanese officials were avowedly anxious to settle the Shanghai clash through diplomatic channels. But it was the last step leading to a formally declared war and jeopardize their control of North China.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek was said in Tokyo completing the movement of Chinese troops to the north along the Hankow to Peiping and Pukow to Tientsin railroads. This movement has been going on since the first clash over the rich North China region occurred on July 7 and was considered as evidence of his intention to recapture Peiping and Tientsin.

Simultaneously, the Generalissimo, described by foreign military experts as one of the greatest strategists in the orient, is moving a large force from the north along the Peiping-Suiyuan railroad to strike the now extended Japanese army in the rear and envelop them in the vicinity of Peiping.

Japanese authorities were afraid that China would strike without warning against Tokyo with the powerful Chinese fleet of American-made torpedos and bombing planes. These ships are said to have an effective bombing radius of 150 miles.

The Japanese were tight-lipped about the report that the airplane carriers, with their broods of warbirds tucked safely aboard, were also somewhere off Wosung.

Japanese wharves groined with men, equipment and supplies.

DANGER!
Automobile Coming!

When automobiles were first introduced, an eastern community showed a lax requirement of motor vehicles to be preceded by a man carrying a red flag in order to avoid frightening men and animals. The speed menace in those days was trifling—some of the early cars were advertised as being able to go 20 miles per hour. And speaking of speed—when you need to get something, or have something to sell, Post-Crescent Want Ads are a mighty speedy way to get results. Take a look at this one:

Suspect Arrested in Bottle Throwing Case
Los Angeles—(AP)—Police jailed Theodore Watts, 26, early today on suspicion of throwing an empty liquor bottle that endangered Al Johnson and Ruby Keeler and slightly cut Chico Marx when it splintered against the Olympic auditorium boxing ring.

The bottle crashed over the heads of ringsters in the seventh round of the main event, between George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight of Leipsville, Pa., and Hank Hankinson, Akron, O.

Visibly shaken, Johnson clapped on his straw hat while Miss Keeler, his wife, brushed glass off her dress. They left immediately, but the piano-playing Marx brother and Mrs. Marx stayed for the fight. Marx suffered a slight scratch on his arm.

72 Alleged Rail Wreckers Killed In Soviet Purge

Total Known Executions To Root Out Spies and Wreckers Reaches 320

Moscow—(AP)—The execution of 72 alleged Far Eastern railroad wreckers accused of conspiring with the Japanese Secret Service was reported today by the Irkutsk newspaper, "East Siberia Pravda."

The executions followed others in series, but the group was one of the largest to be executed in Soviet Russia's farflung Siberian purge.

Now the total of known executions in this Far Eastern campaign to root out spies and wreckers is 320.

The Irkutsk band was described as made up of Trotskyists, Rightist Terrorists who wrecked trains with the Japanese railway at the behest of the Japanese Intelligence Service, thus weakening Soviet transportation in the case of war with Japan.

They were charged with causing one wreck in which fourteen persons were killed and many injured. In Moscow, meanwhile, the newspaper "Literature" reported the expulsion from the Communist party of the poet Alexander I. Bezimen-sky, who had been a member since 1916.

The paper said a meeting of writers which recommended the expulsion found that the poet had been an active disciple of the exiled Leon Trotsky since 1923.

Man Goes to Prison for Aiming Gun at Marshal
Whitehall—(AP)—Pleading guilty before Circuit Judge R. S. Cowie today, Jerry Roy Baker, 30, of Cleveland, O., was sentenced to 1 to 3 years imprisonment for stealing a car at Osseo, July 24, and to 8 years for stealing a loaded .38 Smith & Wesson with intent to commit murder. The terms to run concurrently. Marshal Cliff Ford, was given a souvenir, the pistol Baker aimed at him and which failed to fire when the trigger was pulled.

With the insurgent armies in Spain—(AP)—Nowhere in the world can people forget war so quickly, turn so swiftly from strife and bloodshed to carnival, as in Spain. The front lines may be less than fifty miles away but...

In the little town of Avila, walled city of saints, bombing planes take off day and night for the Madrid front, about 60 miles away... and while the bombers fly overhead at night with lights out, while the citizens keep one ear cocked at all times for the scream of sirens indicating an enemy air attack, in the main square, amid a blaze of lights, a sort of merry-go-round entertains the folk until close to midnight...

In every Spanish city and town is a plaza mayor, a main square, center of social life... Most of them are designed along the lines of the architecturally perfect low square of Salamanca, product of the Spanish Renaissance...

In the plaza mayor in the evening, entire families take their "paseo"... They stop at the cafe tables, the head of the family for drinks... They swap the gossip of the day with friends and neighbors...

Everyone turns out... Here the eligible young ladies, suitor arm-in-arm in one direction, the young men in the opposite direction, each with an eye to the other...

Democrats in Pledge to Keep Party Harmony

President Roosevelt Is Absent From Dinner in Washington

GARNER PRESIDES
Live Dove of Peace Soars Over Dinners at Banquet Table

Washington—Pledges of party harmony echoed among senate democrats today, but the voice of President Roosevelt was missing from the chorus.

The president, because of "pressure of other things," did not attend the "harmony" dinner held last night by the Democratic senators, recently split over legislative issues.

He paid tribute to the honor guest—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, new majority leader—in a note, which said in part:

"He has two great gifts for which he ought to be thankful and for which we are truly grateful—a sense of perspective and a sense of humor which enables him to distinguish between the ridiculous and the serious."

Publicly there was no comment on the president's failure to attend or to make a general appeal for party harmony in his message. Some of those who fought his court bill, however, speculated privately about its possible significance.

Among those present was Senator Copeland of New York, who on Monday accused the president of destroying party harmony and of seeking reprisals against those who fought his court program.

There was no mention of these mundane things at the dinner, held amid music and merriment. A live pigeon, symbolizing a "dove of peace," fluttered about the banquet hall. Spun sugar doves nestled on the floor, and the piece de resistance was a live dove.

The most significant development of the evening, some of the guests said, was a remark by Barkley that as leader he would speak frankly in conveying the views of the senate to the president and vice versa.

He told his colleagues he would try to harmonize the two governmental branches in working out legislative problems.

Some of the senators also attacked significance to a speech by Senator Lewis of Illinois, party whip, in which he warned them of "efforts afoot in the name of democracy that may be the destruction of democracy."

Lewis told reporters afterward he had expressed regret "that our distinguished leader in this generation and faith is being ever imposed upon by certain elements in politics who did not have the courage to be Republicans nor the sense to be Democrats." He did not identify the "certain elements."

Vice President Garner, who long has been working for party harmony, presided. Among the speakers were Senators Glass of Virginia, Smith of South Carolina, and Wheeler of Montana, who have been conspicuous in opposing various administration measures.

Wisconsin to Get Aid For Wild Life Program
Madison—(AP)—State conservation department officials estimated today that Wisconsin's share of the $3,000,000 annual federal aid for wild life conservation, voted yesterday by the United States senate, would be around $72,000.

The senate bill must receive house approval and President Roosevelt's signature before it can become law.

The state department at present receives no federal funds. The bill provides for sharing in state wild life restoration projects through use of funds from special excise taxes now collected on sportsmen's equipment. Half the funds would be distributed on the basis of area and half on the number of hunting licenses.

German Government Gives London Newspaperman Two Weeks to Leave

Berlin—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, jumped into the British-German press dispute today by accusing a "large number of foreign correspondents of 'helping' Anti-Nazi groups."

Under the caption "How Many Foreign Correspondents 'Work' in Germany?" the paper said many were engaged in providing foreign publicity for Anti-Nazi statements.

"Many of these persons, if they knew what we know about them, would take the next train out of the country," Der Angriff warned.

The Foreign Press association voted a resolution regretting the German government's decision giving Norman Ebbutt, veteran London Times correspondent, two weeks to leave Berlin.

The resolution registered a "fundamental protest against every expulsion which may be carried out by the government of any country solely on the basis of a foreign correspondent's purely journalistic activities."

German action against Ebbutt was in reprisal for the British government's expulsion from England of three German correspondents.

Kaukauna Permitted to Raise Rural Phone Rate
Madison—(AP)—Rate changes affecting two local telephone companies and an electric utility were announced today by the public service commission.

The Kaukauna Telephone company was authorized to increase the individual rural subscriber rate $3 a year, or a total of $360, to avoid a deficit. The new rate is $4.50 a quarter.

All customers of the Coleman-Pound Light and Power company in Marinette county will have the benefit of the company's "bargain rates." The rates previously applied only to consumers who used more than 15 kilowatt hours a month.

Glen Barker, Confessed Slayer, Begins Serving 14 to 25-Year Sentence

Glen Barker, 24, Shiocion, sentenced to serve from 14 to 25 years for the fatal stabbing of Miss Helen Welhouse, 18, Kimberly, at a dance, Sunday night, was taken to the state prison at Waupun this morning by Sheriff John F. Lappen and Jack Frenz, county motorcycle officer.

Meanwhile funeral services for Miss Welhouse were conducted at 9 o'clock this morning at St. John's Catholic church, Little Chute. The Rev. John J. Sprangers was in charge and burial was in the parish cemetery.

Barker, who pleaded guilty of second degree murder in circuit court of Judge Edgar V. Werner yesterday morning, had little to say after the trial. He spent the afternoon and evening visiting with relatives and friends.

At 7:30 this morning he departed in the custody of the sheriff and motorcycle officer for Waupun. He expressed the wish that he might see the dead girl.

Jury Verdict
Although Barker was arraigned in municipal court, bound over to circuit court where he pleaded guilty of the crime yesterday morning, a coroner's jury met Tuesday afternoon. Its verdict was that the girl's death "resulted from a knife wound in the neck, inflicted by Glen Barker."

Less than 60 hours after the fatal stabbing at the Twelve Corners dance hall at 11:30 Sunday night, Barker was apprehended, arraigned in municipal court, tried in circuit court and on his way to prison. He will be eligible for parole in 13 years and 9 months according to Sheriff Lappen.

After the attack which occurred following conversation over the return of the girl's picture, Barker fled from the dance hall and drove about for a time before returning to his home where he told his parents what he had done.

Attempts Drowning
They accompanied him to the sheriff's office and after learning that the girl was dead or dying he ran from the car in which he was waiting while his father reported the affair. He leaped into the Fox river but swam to shore again. He wandered aimlessly during the remainder of the night and day until he was arrested on Wisconsin avenue about 6:30 Monday night by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Hoppe of the Appleton Police department.

He gave himself up readily and admitted his identity. Turned over to the sheriff, Barker immediately confessed.

The 1936 graduating class of the St. John's High school, Little Chute, of which Miss Welhouse was a member, marched in a body at the funeral this morning. Bearers were Donald Vander Velden, Richard and Andrew Coogan, Gordon Baumgard, Paul Dercks and Julius Van Handel.

Michigan to Get New REA Projects
Nearly Two Million Dollars Allotted for Program During 1937

Washington—(AP)—The Rural Electrification administration announced today tentative allotment of $1,845,000, for Michigan projects during the current fiscal year.

That figure, the administration said, would give the state the largest allotment possible under the law.

Announcement of the allotment followed by a few hours REA administrator John M. Carmody's statement to Michigan project officers and prospective project leaders that the Michigan Rural Electrification association is not his intermediary.

Carmody made the statement after a conference with Howell Van Auker and Joseph M. Donnelly, Michigan public utility commissioners.

"There appears to be some belief in Michigan that the Michigan Rural Electrification association is a designated representative of REA or is an intermediary through which to reach REA," Carmody said.

"This is wholly erroneous. I am advised the association has been virtually inactive for some months. Lynd A. Walking, who was its administrative head, as superintendent of the 'fruit belt' project in Cass county."

State officials and Carmody declined to amplify the statement. Van Auker and Donnelly had conferred with Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan before the statement was issued. Brown said the law was "routine business."

The REA said it has received applications from Michigan cooperatives totaling $4,773,000 for 1937. Its total appropriation for all states is $30,000,000. The law requires that half the amount be distributed on a basis of un electrified farms, and not more than 10 per cent of the remainder be given any one state.

Gannett Hits Federal Control 'Over Lives'
Binghamton, N. Y.—(AP)—Frank E. Gannett foresaw today an unprecedented "prosperity and happiness" for the nation "if we stop reckless spending and shake off federal power and control over our acts and lives."

The Rochester publisher, addressing farmers at a forestry field day near Sidney Center, said that European dictatorship "already is bringing oppression, unhappiness and disaster" and appealed for "less regulation and restriction" in the United States.

"We need to take off the brakes and give the signal to go ahead," he asserted. "If we only will use common sense, awaken the people to the importance of protecting our democratic form of government, stop reckless spending and shake off federal power and control over our acts and lives such as now curse the countries in Europe, there is no reason why we cannot enter upon a period of the greatest prosperity and happiness that our country has ever known."

Mr. Gannett termed federal control of industry and agriculture "contrary to the American ideal," opposing in particular the regulation of hours and wages.

ACCEPTS REPORT
President Roosevelt's Recommendations Deleted From Measure

Washington—(AP)—The house ended this session's bitter court controversy today by approving the lower court procedure bill and sending it to the White House.

The legislation was embodied in a conference report which the senate had accepted yesterday without a word of debate.

Deleted from the measure were President Roosevelt's recommendations relating to the supreme court—the cause of a bitter senate fight.

Chairman Sumners (D-Tex.) of the judiciary committee, presented the conference report and made a brief statement explaining the measure.

A quorum call insisted upon by Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) brought 387 of the 432 members to the floor.

"I believe this legislation will be welcomed and supported by the courts of the country," Sumners said.

The bill followed closely the agreement reached by senate leaders when the Roosevelt high court proposals were side-tracked. It contained four major points:

Direct appeal from lower courts to the supreme court in cases involving the constitutionality of acts of congress.

Intervention by the attorney general in lower court cases involving constitutionality of acts of congress.

Three-judge lower courts to sit in suits for injunction to block enforcement of acts of congress.

Transfer of judges, within judicial circuits, to meet congestion.

Continue Inquest in Death of Crash Victim
Chicago—(AP)—The coroner's office continued today to Aug. 27 an inquest into the death of Carl Friebel, 30, formerly of Sheboygan, Wis., who was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Simonovits, 32.

The continuance was ordered to allow relatives of the victim, who came here from Sheboygan six weeks ago, to testify at the hearing. Simonovits was scheduled to appear in safety court tomorrow on a charge of reckless driving.

New London Child Killed by Truck
Skull Crushed Under Late Tuesday Wheels of Machine

New London—James, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Beattie, was killed about 4:15 Tuesday afternoon on Shawano street by a truck driven by Edwin Knapp, 26, route 2, Maple Creek. The accident occurred as the boy was crossing the street in the truck, which was transporting a large horse, crushed the youth's skull. The truck is owned by the Knapp brothers, Maple Creek.

Besides the parents, he is survived by five brothers and sisters, Mary, Doris, George, John and Robert.

The body was taken to the Cline and Learman Funeral home.

Seek City Clerk on Embezzlement Charge
Hurley, Wis.—(AP)—A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Hugo Di Ullo, former city clerk of Hurley, charging him with embezzlement of $1,335 of city funds. Di Ullo is believed to be in Milwaukee.

German Seaplane Nordmeer Starts Hop for New York
Luebeck, Germany—(AP)—The German seaplane Nordmeer took off for Lisbon at 7:30 A. M. (12:50 A. M. C. S. T.) today on the first leg of her maiden voyage to New York surveying a route for future transatlantic service linking the United States and Germany.

The 16-ton flying ship roared into the air from this Baltic seaport and headed southwest for the flight to Portugal, considered the most dangerous section of the journey because it is overland.

Flight Captain Joachim Blankenburg said he expected to make the first leg in about 13 hours.

From Lisbon the Nordmeer is scheduled to fly to the Azores where the catapult ship Schwabenland is standing by to refuel and launch the plane for the 2,390 mile final hop to New York.

About an hour and a half out of Luebeck, Capt. Blankenburg reported his position as over Hildersheim, the Netherlands, and said the giant air boat was cruising at a speed of 160 miles an hour.

There was a possibility the Nordmeer might remain at Hildersheim, until Saturday. That would mean the ship would not reach New York until Sunday.

The flight is the first of eight trips scheduled this year across the Atlantic for the Nordmeer and her sister-ship the Nordwest, making Germany's opening bid for transatlantic passenger and freight service.

The plane, like its sister-ship, is driven by four 600-horsepower Diesel engines with a cruising speed of about 160 miles an hour. A top speed of 200 miles an hour is a cruising radius of more than 3,000 miles.

House Loafs as Wages, Hour Bill Is in Committee

Drop Rules Committee Meeting Planned to Speed Action
LEADERS CONFER
Indicate Measure Is Tied Up Over Crop-Loan Legislation

Washington—(AP)—The wage and hour bill bogged down today—for the time being at least—in the house rules committee and left administration leaders groping for legislation to occupy the house until the weekend.

A meeting of the rules committee, called to consider granting the wage and hour measure legislative right of way, was cancelled suddenly after a conference of Democratic leaders.

One of the group said privately there were not enough votes to bring the bill from the committee.

There were strong indications the measure was entangled in controversy over crop loan-legislation. Hints have come from some farm state legislators that they would oppose action on the wage-hour measure unless some steps were taken to bolster farm prices.

One step in that direction was taken by a senate agriculture subcommittee. It reported to the full committee a measure providing loans on five major crops, including cotton.

Price Schedule
The schedule would provide 10 cents a bushel on cotton, 70 cents a bushel on wheat, 50 cents a bushel on corn, 8 cents a pound on tobacco and 65 cents a bushel on rice.

The same loan rates were urged by a group of southern agriculture commissioners, a proposed bill presented to the house agriculture committee.

The measure, as explained before the house committee, would guarantee growers, who complied with a production control program expected to be passed at the next session, subsidy payments on this year's crop amounting to the difference between the loans and the prices the agriculture department would designate as parity prices.

The rules committee delay, one leading Democrat remarked, may give the administration time to work out a farm plan to woo a majority of farm or two from the labor standards bill in the committee.

Statement to Reporters
"We have reached the stage in our proceedings 'where we have to hop about a bit, taking whatever is ready,'" Speaker Bankhead told reporters in discussing the general legislative situation.

Asked whether he still thought it possible for congress to adjourn by the close of next week, the speaker shook his head slowly and answered: "I don't know."

The house may take up later in the week a wheat crop insurance bill and a measure to give the president power to reorganize governmental agencies, he said. But for the most part, prospects for the immediate future are that the house will content itself with consideration of purely secondary items.

Leaders had hoped to get up the low-cost housing bill today. But that, too, is snagged in a committee.

With reference to a farm bill, Bankhead said: "As far as the leadership of the house is concerned, we have given the president our assurance we will do everything in our power to have a bill ready by the first of January and give it the right of way."

No Assured Action
He added in response to a question that he did not see how any greater assurance of action on a crop control bill could be given unless congress made a definite guarantee.

Chief Immigration Inspector L. D. Grossman sent her to Galveston to be deported for lack of proper papers. Her husband had not been heard from.

Mrs. Worman, meanwhile, had nothing but kind words for Capt. J. C. Smith of the steamer Hybert, who "loaned me a pair of pants."

N. W. Ordinance Ranks High Among Acts of Congress

Rotary Club Hears History Of Territorial Government

The Northwest ordinance, judged by its results, ranks as one of the greatest enactments of all time, Dr. C. D. Neidhold told the Rotary Club Tuesday noon at Hotel Northern. "The ordinance welded groups of dissident peoples together, provided a way for the government of what was then a wilderness, and in many respects was a more liberal document than the constitution itself."

"At the Treaty of Paris in 1763," Dr. Neidhold said in beginning a short history of the territory brought under the provisions of the ordinance, France ceded this huge block of land, from which the states of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and part of Minnesota have been carved, to England, from whom it passed into the hands of the colonists after the Revolutionary war. Several individual states, however, lay claim to the land, citing their charters which gave them title from "sea to sea," a claim which had been made when it was supposed the American continent was very narrow.

Submit Several Plans "When the articles of confederation were signed all the states were forced to cede their claims to the federal government, and in 1789 congress reserved all the lands ceded to the United States to be disposed of for the common benefit. By 1789 congress had received full title to the land, and plans for its disposal were wanted. Several plans were submitted: one to make the territory one large state; another, by Jefferson, provided for 14 states; many others were but selfish land-grabbing schemes.

"The Northwest ordinance, as passed on July 13, 1787, provided for a temporary form of government until the states had attained sufficient population, set at 60,000. To be admitted to the union, for the admission of all states on an equal basis with the original 13, for the prohibition of slavery in the new lands.

"These provisions," continued Dr. Neidhold, "meant that the United States was the first country ever to create a colony which might later assume a status equal to its creator. Assure Freedom

"Included in the ordinance were provisions not to be found in the constitution. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of religion, freedom of contracts, trial by jury, a provision for habeas corpus, a provision preventing deprivation of property without due process of law, and provisions for education—all these attest to the high regard for the rights of man which has been recognized from Washington onward.

"The Northwest ordinance," Dr. Neidhold concluded, "was not the work of self-centered politicians. It was forced upon congress, as it were, by the will of the common man, desiring a practical, foolproof approach to the great problem of settling a wilderness, introducing law and order, and adding the territory to the original commonwealth. Its results are self-evident. Forty-five per cent of the country's population now lives in the territory covered by the ordinance, while 35 states have modeled their constitutions upon it."

Dr. Neidhold expressed the hope that an ox team caravan, commemorating the ordinance, would pass through Appleton next spring on its westward trip.

Brillion Peas Soon Will Find Place on Presidential Table

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—President Roosevelt will soon be eating some of the finest green peas ever grown in Wisconsin. It plans of the Lions Club of Brillion meet with success.

According to the office of Rep. Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac, five cases of peas canned at Brillion are now on their way to the White House, the gift of the Lions Club. Brillion is located in one of the leading pea-growing areas of the Badger state.

The peas will be shipped direct to the White House, but Rep. Reilly will make a formal presentation of the gift to the president, when he presents a specially prepared scroll calling attention to the diversified interests of Wisconsin and that particular area.

Wilbur Schmidt, formerly of Brillion and now employed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation here, was instrumental in making arrangements for the presentation of the peas.

According to Schmidt, the president recently expressed a desire for some Wisconsin peas, and said he had heard they were among the finest.

Nearly Half of Farms in County Have Electricity

Rural Electrification Receiving Impetus From REA Program Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The percentage of Wisconsin farmers whose homes and barns are electrified is increasing each year, reports of the state public service commission show, and during the last few years rural electrification has received a considerable impetus from the activities of the REA.

Percentage of electrification in Wisconsin ranges from 4 or 5 per cent in Sawyer and other northern counties, to 75 per cent in some of the southeastern Wisconsin counties. Outagamie and Brown counties are among the first ten counties in the number of farmers having the advantages of electricity. Brown county counts more than 49 per cent, while the Outagamie county area has 44 per cent, exclusive private electric plants.

While the work of the REA is concentrated mainly in western and north central Wisconsin, in the past year projects in the Appleton area have been begun. Work is now planned already underway in Shawano, Waupesa, Oconto, and Marinette counties.

Waupesa rural areas are now served to the extent of 28 per cent by private utilities. The completion of the rural electrification administration project will bring the percentage to 37 per cent.

Oconto county now has only ten per cent of its farms served by electricity, but that figure will shortly be boosted with the completion of a project which includes 305 miles of new lines, which will serve 1,025 customers, or 20 per cent of the total in the county.

A portion of the Lincoln-Langlade county REA project will serve some customers in Shawano county, which will bring its percentage to 28, while the Oconto project will serve some farmers in Marinette county, which now has only 9 per cent of its farms served with electricity.

Percentage of electrification in other counties of the Appleton area: Calumet, 49.2; Manitowish, 44.5; Winnebago, 56.3; and Sheboygan, 49.1.

THREE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH AT DAYTONA BEACH Three persons were killed at Daytona Beach, Fla., when a 14-passenger Eastern Air Lines plane crashed into a newly constructed power line near the airport and flattered helplessly into a thicket. It was the first fatal accident for the line. The wreckage is shown here.

Green Bay Man Officer In Spanish Loyal Army

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—John W. Cookson of Green Bay, a former University of Wisconsin graduate student who went to Spain to fight for the Loyalists, has become a lieutenant in the signal corps of the government forces, according to letters received by his friends.

Cookson, who was an R.O.T.C. cadet on the campus, viewed the chances of the government in Spain in an optimistic light. Though the civil war in Spain is now more than a year old, the people and the country, instead of being exhausted, are filled with a new zeal for their cause, he wrote.

"The grain crop is a bumper one, with a seven per cent increase in the sown area. The industries are functioning at full speed. A new spirit—one of absolute certainty in the outcome—prevails.

"We find a strong and powerful united nation developed out of the struggle against fascism. And finally, there is a fairly well equipped standing at the west of Europe, guarding against the war provocation of the fascists.

"The attack on all fronts, with its clarion call of a 'victory day,' has started and is proceeding with startling success," he asserted.

General Motors Deals Only With U. A. W. A.

Detroit—A guarantee given by General Motors corporation on July 11 that it would not negotiate with any union but the United Automobile Workers for six months expired today, but an agreement signed on the same day remained in effect.

The formal agreement, which ended a prolonged and costly strike and set up procedure for averting future strikes, can be cancelled only on 60-days notice by either side. The U. A. W. A. gave notice in June of its intention to seek amendments to the agreement and negotiations on those amendments are now in progress.

The six-months guarantee of exclusive recognition for the U. A. W. A. in 17 plants then strike-bound was contained in a supplemental letter from the corporation to Governor Frank Murphy and was not made a part of the formal contract.

Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, who is attending a meeting of the union's executive board in Milwaukee while a committee carries on negotiations with General Motors officials here, said he was not concerned over expiration of the supplemental guarantee. The corporation has given no indication of an intention to deal with other unions.

Leviton Urges Public Officials to be Honest

Duluth, Minn.—Sol Levitin, Wisconsin state treasurer, urged public officials today to be "more sincere" in their dealings with the public.

Leviton, honorary president of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers, spoke at the annual convention of the association here.

"I am convinced," he said, "most of our difficulties in politics, in business, and in life are caused by a lack of sincerity."

530 Pheasants to be Released in County

Arrangements for liberating 530 pheasants in Outagamie county will be made at a meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the courthouse, according to George Whalen, conservation warden.

All cooperators who have received pheasant eggs, those who have made application to the state for pheasants and representatives from sportsmen's clubs and the county game committee have been invited to attend the meeting.

Tobacco Growers Adopt New Plan

Crops Can be Sold Outside Of Organization Under New Pool Permit Madison—Members of the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco Pool will be permitted to sell their tobacco outside the organization under a plan approved at the annual meeting yesterday.

The board of directors, upon authorization by the pool, made arrangements so that up to Sept. 30 this year and during June in future years a grower may notify the pool of his intention to market that year's crop himself, but must pay one cent a pound to the pool at the time of delivery of his tobacco.

George Nygaard, Chasaburg, was elected president of the Pool. Other officers are M. T. Jensen, Esol, Mound, vice president, and Lester Galvin, Cottage Grove, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Directors chosen at the meeting, besides Nygaard and Jensen, were Lawrence Peterson, Soldiers Grove; Peter Stromstad, Coon Valley; Melvin Munson, Viroqua; A. W. Hansen, Cashon; Carl Kolmstrom, Oshkosh; and Ole Quale, Chippewa Falls.

No directors were named for the southern districts because the Pool has released southern Wisconsin tobacco growers from their 1937 contracts.

Next year's meeting will be held at Viroqua.

St. Patrick's Church Plans Picnic Sunday

Stephensville—A chicken booby and picnic will be held by St. Patrick's congregation at Stephensville next Sunday, Aug. 15. The Rev. R. Schauer is pastor. Mrs. Charles Klitzke, Mrs. Henry Schmitz and Mrs. William Cummings will be in charge of arrangements assisted by Mrs. Clarence Casey, Mrs. Matt Schmidt and Mrs. Mito Komp.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Gracyalna and family, Menasha, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klitzke.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Schultes and sons of Appleton spent the weekend at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schultes.

Edwin Komp, Athens, Ohio, is spending several days visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Komp. He will leave Wednesday for Athens where he is employed as a cheesemaker.

July Pension Payments Total Million Dollars

Madison—Pension aids paid out by the state during July totaled $1,048,222, the public welfare department announced today.

This sum, paid to 58,339 persons, was divided as follows: old age pensions, 36,356 persons, $709,802; aid for dependent children, 21,006 persons, $285,204; blind pensions, 1,877 persons, $43,216.

The pension totals are fairly constant, the department said. The figures for June were:

Total aids, $8,980 cases $1,036,732; old age, 36,208—$702,523; dependent children, 20,782—$291,000; blind, 1,880—$43,114.

Transient's Cigaret Believed to Have Ignited $3,000 Fire

Little Chute—A barn, 36 by 42 feet, owned by Martin Hendricks, route 4, Appleton, and located about two miles from his farm was completely destroyed by fire at about 8 o'clock Monday evening. The barn was filled with hay and barley and the loss is estimated at about $3,000. The loss is not covered by insurance as the barn was used only as a temporary storing place. The cause of the fire is unknown but it is thought because the fire started in a straw stack outside the barn a transient who had slept there might have started it by the careless discarding of a cigarette.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pennings, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Reynebeau, Mr. and Mrs. John Hammen and Mr. and Mrs. Anton Wonders attended the American legion convention in Milwaukee Sunday and Monday.

Sign Contracts for Resurfacing Streets

Contracts for resurfacing College avenue and a portion of W. Washington street were signed today by city officials and Charles A. Green and Son construction company.

Work is expected to be started soon on the resurfacing projects to cost about $45,000.

College avenue will be resurfaced with cold sheet asphalt, type J, with a 1-inch binder and 1-inch wearing surface from Drew street to Story street and the same material will be used on Washington street from Oneida street to Superior street. New curb and gutter is being installed on the avenue by WPA workmen.

Governor LaFollette On 2-Day Speaking Tour

Madison—Governor LaFollette left Madison today on a two-day speaking tour, stopping first at Independence, Trempealeau county, where he was scheduled to speak at a dedication of a WPA dam.

He will appear tonight at the dedication of a town hall at Jump River, Taylor county, and will speak tomorrow at 1:30 P. M. at a city festival in Owen, Clark county. He will give an address at 4:30 P. M. tomorrow at the dedication of a WPA dam at Augusta, Eau Claire county.

General Franco Shells Own City To End Uprising

Rebellion Spreads as Spanish Leader Turns Artillery on Ranks

Madrid—(AP)—Spanish government sources reported today Generalissimo Francisco Franco's artillery had shelled his own city of Segovia to put down a revolt in the insurgent ranks. The rebellion was said to be spreading through province after province.

Government observation posts reported a brisk conflict was going on in the city 43 miles northwest of Madrid. The crackle of machine gun and rifle fire within Segovia, the observers reported, could be heard plainly from the nearby government lines.

Insurgent artillery batteries were to have opened fire on their own stronghold from Quita Pesares.

Reports from far to the south said that revolt was widespread in the neighborhood of the city of Granada and that Franco's troops, rebelling against his regime, had used rifles and machine guns in an attack on the city.

Attack "Comrades" Posts Then, these reports said, the rebelling insurgents attacked the positions held by their former comrades in the vicinity. The fighting was said to have reached its height about noon yesterday. Observers declared that a squadron of insurgent warplanes had hovered low over Granada but had not bombed the city.

The Valencia defense ministry said three Italian officers had been slain in street fighting between Spanish insurgents and their volunteer foreign allies at Malaga of the southern coast.

Thirty Spanish officers were said to have been arrested as a result of the Italian slayings. Five of these, the ministry said, were executed and the others sentenced to prison terms.

Three German officers were declared to have been executed in another incident after their German general stripped them of their rank.

Internal fighting among insurgents was also reported on the Toledo front, south of Madrid, particularly at Caspio Del Tajo.

The defense ministry interpreted a train wreck at Caceres, in insurgent territory, as a deliberate act of sabotage by an engineer who favored the government cause.

(Insurgent authorities have consistently denied there was any disaffection in the territory gained by them in the more than a year-old Spanish Civil war.)

OPEN NEW DRIVE

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier—Insurgent forces on the Teruel front east of Madrid today opened a new drive toward the headwaters of the Tagus river, pushing government defenders from the village of Frias de Albaracin under heavy fire.

Government commanders acknowledged their troops had "evacuated" the village after a desperate battle on the western edge of the salient thrust by Generalissimo Francisco Franco toward communication lines connecting Madrid and Valencia.

The drive in that sector, if successful, would open new roads for an insurgent descent on Cuenca from the north through the Valdemeca mountains.

Government sources reported government airmen had retaliated by bombarding the insurgent-held villages of Geta de Albaracin and Beza north of Frias. On other sectors of the Aragon front the government asserted General Jose Miaja's troops advanced to three important hilltop positions, capturing Sierra Cabellera, Loma and Ancha in the Peiro mountains.

Sentence Two Rivers Man to State Prison

Waupaca—Myron Schley, 38, Two Rivers, pleaded guilty of passing a $280 fraudulent check in circuit court yesterday and was sentenced by Judge Byron B. Park to serve from one to ten years in state prison at Waupun. He was taken to Waupun Tuesday by Sheriff D. A. Campbell who arrested Schley Aug. 4 at New London.

William Smith, 22, Clintonville, pleaded guilty of larceny in circuit court Monday and was sentenced to serve from one to three years in state prison. Judge Park imposed the sentence and placed Smith, who was arrested by Clintonville police Aug. 6, on probation in care of E. W. Viack, probation officer.

Steelwork Nearly Complete at New School Building

Ninety per cent of all the steelwork on the new high school has now been completed, according to A. J. Lytle, architect's superintendent. The shop unit the brick work has begun and the lower windows started. The glass block panes in the gymnasium are being set while 65 per cent of the brick work on the gymnasium is complete. The slabbing of the second floor of the academic section is finished.

The boiler house is all ready to receive the boilers, and they will be moved over today. The south half of the air tunnel in the basement has been done, and the remainder will be completed by the end of this week. The ground work and roughing in of the plumbing is 90 per cent complete.

Additional bricklayers have been hired almost every day, and the total of men now employed upon the building is about 160. There have been no serious accidents to date.

Michigan Legislature Ends Special Session

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—A handful of lawmakers today brought to final adjournment the special session of the 1937 legislature that revolved and killed Governor Frank Murphy's labor relations program.

Scarcely a dozen legislators were in the city for the perfunctory ceremony of adjourning without date for reconvening. There was every indication the governor would call another special session before the year has ended and attempt to shove through legislative proposals that failed despite his endorsement.

As its outstanding accomplishments, the special session passed a teachers' tenure law, amended the unemployment insurance law to change its exemption features, and approved corrective amendments to laws passed in the regular session.

Brooms Fly as Artillery Band Is Inspected at Camp

Camp Williams—The 120th Field Artillery band had inspection of quarters and instruments Saturday morning. Brooms and polishing cloths were flying from 7:30 until 9 o'clock. Tents were furled and bunks made up both regulation style and unregimentably. The words "safety" being used interchangeably.

Major "Shadow" Schilling has been doing his usual share of "soldiering." He is proudly clad in an army shirt, army cap, boots, and a pair of whippersnapper of unknown origin.

Private John Moyle, formerly of Company D, 127th Infantry of Appleton, has caused a big laugh among the fellows of the band by referring contemptuously to "Now, when I was in the Infantry, we did do and so." He thanks the boys from "The Shop" for the card.

Private Lawrence de Minter has proved quite a help to the band members who carelessly or otherwise dropped and denied their instruments. So far he has repaired a trombone side for Pvt. Parman and a trumpet valve for Sgt. Broucher.

All the band wonders what the grand attraction the town of Camp Douglas carries for Pvt. Jack Feaw. His only remark is that the "change" of living is doing him good.

Specific orders came through concerning the Milwaukee trip. The band left camp by truck Sunday afternoon in Milwaukee at 1:30 in the afternoon. It played for formal guard mount at 4 o'clock in the state fair park. Monday the band played on the reviewing stand in front of the new Milwaukee post office, for the parade.

Seek Peace Conference In Cooperative Dispute

Madison—Counsel for Green and Lafayette county stockholders of the Industrial Cooperative union sent an appeal for a peace conference to members of a rival "mail ballot" board of directors today.

Sam Levitin, attorney for the Green-Lafayette bloc which elected its own set of directors after a dispute over counting of a mail vote, addressed the plea to four of the directors declared elected in that vote—Henry Overton, Union Grove; Sam Ebers, Burlington; Harry Apple, Racine and Orlin Craig, Mukwonago.

Directors were instructed by the mail ballot to dispose of the union's principal property, a cold storage warehouse at Monroe, and dissolve the cooperative.

The Green-Lafayette group wants to pay off the other stockholders' share of the building and then leave it to a cheese pool.

"We appeal to your desire to help the cooperative movement and to help the farmer-producer, to sit down at the table, talk this over and straighten this out," Levitin wrote.

He called a meeting at Monroe Friday.

Lawrence Sees Problems Under Wage-Hour Bill

Government Won't be Able To Discriminate Between Races, Creeds

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—For the first time a federal board is about to be confronted with the decision as to what is meant by "equal pay for equal work."

The federal government cannot very well discriminate as between races or creeds or between whites and Negroes. The proposed legislation to fix minimum wages and maximum hours grants to a federal board discretionary powers. Industries will be asking for special exemptions, and businesses in one section of the country, such as the south, where cheaper labor is used, will be striving to get lower scales than northern competitors.

But will the federal government be able to ignore the rule that all American citizens must be treated alike? Will not a citizen be able to go into court and enjoin any decision of the federal board which discriminates against him on account of color or against a woman on account of sex?

For a long time a group of women leaders have been trying to get an amendment to the federal constitution which would safeguard the rights of women in getting equal pay along with men. They have made considerable headway with the proposal and President Roosevelt favors it. Now, when one of his boards starts applying the rules, will he dare to permit a violation of the principle—no discrimination against women?

The dislocation of jobs which is bound to result to some extent from the minimum wage and maximum hour legislation is likely to affect women more than men. There are many factories and business places where women get perhaps $12 a week. When a minimum of $16 is established, an employer may feel that a young man will be physically stronger and yield an output of product which would make up for the four dollars of increased expense.

Sees Dismissals
Then there is the case of the persons of advanced age. Employers may feel that some jobs are worth $12, but, when it comes to paying $16, they will want younger men. Dismissals by the hundreds of thousands may result.

Naturally, the relief rolls will have to take care of some of these persons displaced but, in the transition period, there will be hardships felt by persons who now have jobs and by their relatives to whom they will first go for support. It is true the law is supposed to grant special licenses to persons of advanced age or who have some partial physical incapacity, which is supposed to make it possible for them to earn wages below the minimum fixed. But it will take much red tape to arrange all this and many employees will prefer, no doubt, to hire younger and more able-bodied persons.

The full economic benefit, namely increase in the national purchasing power, is questionable. Much of the so-called under-privileged labor, as on the farms and in rural districts generally, is not to receive the benefits of the law. So Mr. Roosevelt's cry about one-third of the population being ill-clad, ill-housed and ill-nourished will probably have to be repeated. Certainly the number of persons to be benefited by the act is relatively small, and the proposed legislation may also operate to increase the cost of living for many of the persons who now receive above the minimum scale.

Money Problem
There is also the problem of finding the money in the budget of marginal businesses so as to pay the wages required by law and the increased expense of time and a half overtime where longer hours are necessary for special kinds of work in which interruptions are not feasible. Will employees feel that they cannot advance the wages of those above the minimum because they must use whatever margin they have available for payroll increases so as to meet the new expenses caused by government intervention for the minimum classes? That's what happened under the NRA in not a few businesses. It will happen again.

Whenever the people indifferently let the federal government fix their wages, their cost of living, and run through the whole economic structure the reckless hand of bureaucracy, there are bound to be repercussions. There are some observers here who think the proposed federal board will find its task so circumscribed by difficulties that it will take a year to get a single ruling, very much as the Walsh Healey act has thus far operated, or rather failed to operate, except in the most indirect way.

Certainly the federal power over minimum wages may force greater and greater intervention by government into the whole matter of wages and hours above the minimum. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has persuaded the house to give the unions some leverage in fixing minimum wage scales in conformity with collective bargaining arrangements that exist in certain localities and in line with prevailing wage scales. This alone presents an almost insuperable problem of administration and enforcement. But maybe the A F of L, which inwardly doesn't like the legislation because it gives the government a chance to make labor unions superfluous, doesn't care if the proposed law proves unworkable. Maybe that's one way to sabotage it—to load it down with amendments that will make it vulnerable from a constitutional as well as an economic standpoint.

Announce New Boost in Average Age at Death

Madison — (P) — The board of health announced today "another boost for the average age at death in the state. Figures for June show 1,183 deaths at ages past 65 years, or 64 more than the average number, and only 170 deaths under one year of age, 30 below average. June deaths totaled 2,408, or 16 less than the month's average for the preceding five years. Automobile fatalities, 74, were 12 more than average.

New Labor Board Helps Settle 65 Strikes in State

Mediation Successful in Large Number of Cases, Governor Informed

Madison — (P) — The new state labor relations board has assisted in settling 65 strikes, involving nearly 1,400 persons, since it began work April 27, the board reported to Governor LaFollette today.

"There has been a progressive decrease in the number of strikes and the number of employees involved since the board started to operate," the report said.

"At the present time there are seven strikes in the state in which assistance from the board has been requested. Less than 500 employees are involved in these strikes."

Report 197 Cases
Reporting a total of 197 cases, both formal and informal, the board said:

"From the beginning of its operation until Aug. 1, the board has been successful in adjusting differences by mediation and informal conferences in a very large percentage of the cases brought before it."

In addition to acting as mediators, the board said, its staff has assisted in agreements in 17 cases where no strikes were called or unfair labor practices charged.

Informal conferences have concluded 33 of 78 charges of unfair practices, the board reported, with 32 cases pending.

Prior to June 30, the close of the state's fiscal year, the board disposed of 15 cases, it reported. Two elections to determine bargaining representatives were conducted for the national labor relations board and 13 under the Wisconsin law. Since July 1, 18 additional determinations have brought the total to 33.

Personal Government and the Pork Barrel

Of all the actions taken by the Senate since the defeat of the Judiciary bill, the most important is likely to be the appropriation of $5,000,000 for a census of unemployment. For once a census has been taken showing how many are unemployed and where they live, congress can and will deprive the president of his authority to allocate billions of dollars according to his own personal judgment. It is the beginning of the end of the system under which congress has given to the executive vast sums of money to be distributed as a result of private negotiation between governors and mayors on the one hand, the president's personal appointees on the other.

Congress has had to assent to this system because during the real emergency congress did not and could not know what were the needs in the various communities. But now that emergency unemployment is virtually over, now that the relief population is, so to speak, composed largely of those who are normally not fully self-dependent, it is feasible to make reasonably reliable estimates of how many more or less able-bodied adults there are in each community who cannot or will not take care of themselves. These estimates will enable congress to say how much federal money is to be distributed in each community. There is little doubt that congress will exercise this power as soon as it can.

Both Systems Have Definite Disadvantages

No one who remembers the history of veterans' legislation and of tariff-making will feel altogether happy about the prospect. For he is offered the choice between a presidential fund, which finances personal government, and the congressional pork barrel, which finances the local ambitions of congressmen and senators.

Both systems are bad. The one gives the president more personal power than he ought to have, and subordinates congress to his personal will. In the light of recent events one might almost say his personal whim. But the other system, the congressional pork barrel, makes the individual congressman unduly independent. Because he can finance his own re-election out of the public treasury by doing some smart log-rolling with other congressmen, he can thumb his nose at party principle and party discipline, and make it impossible for the president to exercise national leadership.

President Would Curb Spending By Congress

As between the new evil of personal government, sustained by the lavish distribution of federal funds, and the old evil of the pork barrel, there is not much choice. The best thing to be said for the pork barrel in preference to personal government is that we are more used to it, and that not so much is staked on what goes on under one mortal man's hat.

It might also be said that under the pork barrel system the weight of the executive influence is in favor of restraint. As long as congress distributes the money the president for patriotic, financial, and personal reasons will be found resisting the demands for money. But when there is a system, such as we have now, in which the power and prestige of great spending are the president's, neither branch of the government has any great incentive to check the extravagance of the other.

Independent Body Might Serve Best

The truth of the matter is that large sums of money cannot be distributed by a central government without impairing the character of the government itself. When those sums can be obtained, as they are now obtained, without levying taxes on large bodies of voters, by financial magic, painlessly out of the thin air, the system is self-perpetuating. No politicians, dependent on the vote for re-election, can really be trusted with so much power.

For that reason, in so far as money has to be distributed, the only hopeful remedy is to let some kind of non-partisan and independent body suggest how the money shall be distributed. This principle has been embodied in the new charter of the City of New York. Mr. Roosevelt has talked a lot about planning. Why does he not propose to set up independent commissions in the field of relief, in the field of public works, in the field of agriculture, which will tell him, when he tells congress, will tell the country, where, in what proportions, and in what order these great subsidies shall be paid? Let congress and the president decide how much shall be spent in any one year, but let these planning commissions draw up the programs showing where the money made available is to be spent.

Idea Should Meet With Approval Of President

The idea ought to appeal to the administration. For they can hardly be in any doubt that a prime moving force in the defeat of the judiciary bill and the padlocking of the housing bill with amendments is the determination of the Democratic politicians to reduce the power of the president and to increase their own. Time and circumstance are on their side. The power of the president inevitably diminishes as the economic and social difficulties are liquidated by returning prosperity. At the rate congress is now moving it will, in the course of the next year, reassert its own power decisively against the president, and if Mr. Roosevelt is far-sighted he will, while he still has personal influence, take steps to remove the spending program from politics.

He cannot hope to control that program personally much longer. But he could still hope to prevent

Hearing on Marketing Of Milk Planned Here

The hearing scheduled at the courthouse on milk marketing on Friday, Aug. 20, will be held at 1:30 in the afternoon by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets, according to word received by R. The practice of furnishing patrons with milk cans and paying all or part of the hauling charges and unfair trade practices in the purchase of milk will be considered.

Receives Notice of Highway 41 Decision

Official notice of a change in the route of Superhighway 41 west of the city has been received by John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk, from the state highway commission. Before the commission's decision becomes effective, it must be approved by the county board.

The new route of the road will go north at a point west of the viaduct on Highway 10, just west of the city, and will cut through a portion of the county asylum. The change will involve about a mile of highway.

A hearing was recently conducted here on the change which was opposed by Appleton and the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

1937 Lamb Crop Shows Increase Over Last Year

Result of More Head Being Saved, Reporting Service States

More lambs were raised on Wisconsin farms this year than a year ago in spite of a decrease in the number of breeding ewes, the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture said today in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent. In the United States the lamb crop, although smaller than a year ago, is estimated to be above the 5-year average.

With about 305,000 breeding ewes on Wisconsin farms at the beginning of the year, it is estimated that the lamb crop this year is about 348,000 head. Last year the number of ewes was estimated at 309,000 head and the lamb crop was reported at 315,000 head.

The increase in the lamb crop is due to the greater number of lambs saved. Sheep breeders indicate that 114 lambs were saved for every 100 breeding ewes while last year for the same number of ewes only 102 lambs were saved.

The United States lamb crop this year is about two percent larger than the 5-year average but smaller than the crop reported last year. This decrease from a year ago is due to a smaller number of lambs from the Western States. The native lamb crop is estimated by the United States Crop Reporting Board to be somewhat larger than last year. The mid-year estimates indicate that the nation's lamb crop is about 30,712,000 head compared with 30,979,000 head last year.

Dim Lights for Safety

IT'S ODD But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York—It takes more dynamite, or even pure nitroglycerine, to blow out an oil well fire at high altitude than low.

When battles of the future are fought in the stratosphere this fact may be important to fighters. It's proof was in an oil well fire, at 3800 feet, in Lee county, New Mexico, at a Continental oil company shaft.

When very bad, these fires are extinguished by a charge of nitroglycerine, exploded close to the blaze. It is like blowing out a candle. In Lee county a blast of 30 quarters of nitroglycerine, the amount ordinarily needed to blow a fire such as was burning there, had no effect. Eighty-five quarts also failed. The fire was then snuffed out with a 155 quart explosion, the largest ever used for this purpose.

The explanation is the rarefied atmosphere. There's not so much air to blow.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning! It's a Go!

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, runk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get three two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

PAGING SENATOR LAFOLLETTE AND MANY OTHERS

With three prominent Democratic governors emphatically approving the further shattering of American tradition by bestowing upon our royal house a presidential third term there is something more than suspicion that Gentleman Jim Farley is pulling the strings that make little puppets dance, sing and speak.

In 1928 the senate of the United States passed this resolution:
"It is the sense of the senate that the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States retiring from the presidential office after the second term has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government and that any departure from this time honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

The resolution was introduced by Senator LaFollette. On frequent occasions, both in the senate, to the Associated Press and from various platforms the senator properly and accurately declared that a third term would be a shocking departure for the nation, a long stride on the reptile-scurrying road of dictatorship.

Today Wisconsin's senator is strangely silent.
He goes on vacation with the man who has his eye on a third term. He speaks publicly for that man. The senator is not alone. Others who were in the senate in 1928 are also strangely silent. Is it a conspiracy of silence?

And 1928 was not the first time congress spoke out forcefully in this manner. Back in 1875 when General Grant was flitting with a third term the House adopted a resolution warning him against any violation of that precedent of purity set by Washington limiting the presidency to two terms.

Someone with a timid voice—it would have to be very timid—might point to the fact that the Democratic party is on record promising the people to advance for their consideration a constitutional amendment limiting the presidency to one term. But don't make Jim Farley laugh.

NOT AMONG THE "ONE-THIRD ILL-HOUSED"

Mrs. Irene Delano Robbins, cousin by marriage of the President has been officially inducted into office through the Department of State and put upon the payroll at $5500 a year plus all traveling expenses.

It will be the duty of Mrs. Robbins to give Uncle Sam a little tone and pride in the various establishments he maintains abroad.

It is believed that Mrs. Robbins has unusual talent for the position. Although a grandmother Mrs. Robbins does not retreat before snarling age. She believes in changing the color of her hair to fit her surroundings, sometimes appearing with lavender tresses and sometimes with heliotrope, sometimes with burnished gold and sometimes just carrot red.

We gather that Mrs. Robbins figured her job for Uncle Sam out by herself. And as a patentee she is entitled to it for at least four years.

Mrs. Robbins will have to do a great deal of traveling because there are several hundred American embassies, ministries and consulates, and the good woman simply cannot rest until she gets their interior decorations in harmony. Picture, if you can, an American consulate in Bangkok with green curtains and pink draperies. No more of that after Mrs. Robbins arrives in Southern Asia.

Neither shall we have at Buenos Aires or Valparaiso some chairs of the Georgian period and others of Louis Quinze.

Harmony is Mrs. Robbins' middle name, harmony at $500 plus a month and traveling expenses.

This is a great venture for America. From the igloos of the Eskimos to burning strands and coral atolls the representative of education and civilization will move against the heathen who hasn't ascertained the beneficent results of interior decoration promulgated on a national scale.

It may be that when Mrs. Robbins finishes this task she will be ready to propose a national department determined to convince women that they should have at least seven shades of hair per week. This isn't merely a matter of style and fol-derol. Think of the business for the beauty shops.

Mrs. Robbins is bound to become a national institution.

GANDHI LOOKS AT US AND ALCOHOL

F. Yeats-Brown, several years ago, gained a measure of fame when he wrote "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." An Englishman who had served with crack Indian commands interpreted for the western world some of the meaning of the great religions of India and described his experiences in his search of understanding. Probably those sections of his book which caused most discussion here were the ones in which he described his various experiences with Indian scholars who are looked upon with reverence in their own land because of the apparently super-human powers they possess, powers that he understands are gained through intense study and concentration.

Yeats-Brown said that it is believed by millions of Indians that some of these men are able to see into the future.

Gandhi, great Indian scholar and leader, protests when he is called Mahatma, term applied to these men who attempt to lift the veil that covers the eternal mysteries. But, to millions of lower caste Indians, Gandhi is seer and prophet.

Gandhi last week made a prediction concerning the United States. Currently he is engaged in directing a campaign to make India bone dry within two years. Prohibition, he believes, first must be achieved if the masses of India are to cast off British rule.

Talking about the campaign he is heading, Gandhi observed that "America will return to prohibition once more with still greater fervor and better experience in enforcement."

Believers in yoga will think that Gandhi's prediction is the inspired statement of a man who knows what the future holds.

Non-believers will wonder what a shriveled, brown-skinned man can know about the problems that face this Nation. They will recall that Gandhi is popularly caricatured in bed-sheet garb and they will smile. Some will scoff, forgetting that the Indian leader represents probably more millions than do the dictators. Gandhi's appearance may evoke smiles but he has a large place in the history of the times and events may so shape themselves that he will have a large place in the history of all times. The scoffers will forget that, whatever else he may be, Gandhi is one of the best-informed men of his time.

Perhaps Gandhi does not draw on any mystical powers he may possess when he predicts that prohibition is on the way back in the United States. Many persons who are as reluctant to claim supernatural powers as is Gandhi have been saying the same thing with increasing frequency and volume during these last months.

The wiser ones among those who make and sell intoxicants know that there is danger of prohibition's return and are doing all that they can to limit the abuses of alcohol and to control its distribution.

The truth cannot be repeated too often that if distribution is not properly controlled, if the toll of deaths that is the consequence of drunken driving is not reduced, if abuses of regulations are not curbed, there may be reaction that will return us to a prohibition regimen as quickly as prohibition was swept out by repeal.

It may be, as Gandhi says, that we will be able to apply "better experience in enforcement" if prohibition returns. The statement is open to question. We did not learn a great deal about enforcement during the years of prohibition. About the most we learned is that enforcement is difficult always, impossible sometimes.

No liberal-minded person wants, ever again, to be a witness to the abuses of law that were our experience prior to repeal.

But the liberal-minded, as well as the reformers, will continue to insist that present abuses shall be corrected.

Perhaps Gandhi knows what is in store for us. Sober-minded persons will believe that one does not need to have a reputation as possessor of mystical powers to know that regulation of alcohol must be tightened else public sentiment will demand a tightening of distribution.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

BARBARA IS GRANDPA'S GIRL
Barbara is Grandpa's girl!
When they are one day apart,
He comes from the city's whirl,
With a lift of his old heart,
Knowing Barbara will come
To his arms and hold him tight,
Murmuring to him the sum
Of her babyhood's delight.

"I love Grandpa best of all!"
In two years she learned his worth
If she heard her Grandpa call.
She would run across the earth,
For his heart, pure gold and kind,
Is a setting for this pearl.
She gives him her heart and mind:
Barbara is Grandpa's girl!

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE ULTRAVIOLET?

Correspondent says she has been taking sunbaths for two or three hours a day, but now she is worried about possible harmful consequences as she has Ben Told (Ben gets about, doesn't he?) That the ultraviolet rays must be strained, as they are too strong otherwise . . . It is evident from the many and odd queries about ultraviolet light, irradiation and "violet" rays, as the child-minded say, that there is a good deal of confusion and misinformation in the popular mind. Probably a source of much of the misinformation and confusion about ultraviolet light was the occasional magisterial comment of a late philosopher who harbored an obsession that very strong ultraviolet rays could penetrate the skull and work havoc with the membranes covering the brain or the brain itself, and the cultured but scientifically unlearned old gentlemen cautioned his readers not to go about without hats.

Actually there is as much truth in that notion as there was in the fine old romantic contrivance whereby the hero or heroine in the novel smoothly escaped from an impossible situation by developing brain fever from sheer intensity of passion—a feat never quite achieved in real life.

To the best of our present knowledge the benefit derived from sunbaths, from outdoor life, from exposure of the skin to sun, from tanning, is due to the production of vitamin D from the chemical action of the ultraviolet rays of sunlight on a substance known as ergosterol which is present in the skin. Ergosterol is present in many foods, and if such foods are exposed to ultraviolet light the ergosterol is converted into vitamin D. Ergosterol is called the provitamin D, the mother substance from which vitamin D is produced. Exposure of anything to sunlight is irradiation, and the term "irradiated" as applied to certain foods means the food has been exposed to ultraviolet rays to impart vitamin D to it. Much milk is so treated to produce the desirable vitamin D. All natural foods of man being poor in vitamin D.

Direct mid-day sunshine in mid-summer contains a considerable amount of ultraviolet rays. Cloud, dust, fog, but especially smoke in the atmosphere screens out much of the ultraviolet light. Early in the morning and late in the afternoon the sunlight contains the least ultraviolet. In midwinter there is comparatively little ultraviolet in the sunlight. But there is some ultraviolet whenever there is even diffuse daylight, and for health's sake, disregarding other considerations, every one should absorb as much ultraviolet as possible day by day. Nudity is always healthy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Fibroid Tumors
Underwent operation for removal of fibroid tumors. Was getting along well until I came across comparative article saying that the proper treatment for fibroid tumors is a cleansing diet and that operation often caused cancer. (N. J.)

Answer—Better throw the magazine back in the ash can and thank your lucky stars the charlatans didn't get you started on that "cleansing diet" before your operation.

Going Shopping?
Please send me the names of at least four good doctors or specialists in . . . who can remove prostatic obstruction by transurethral

resection as you described. (S. F. C.)
Answer—Maybe a roster of the national association of urologists would be more convenient. I do not send such lists. Always glad to recommend a physician or specialist if I know of one in your neighborhood.

Your Birthday

"LEO"
If August 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Misunderstandings, due entirely to inattention, are likely to be the cause of many a lost temper on this date. It will pay to listen carefully to anyone who tries to tell you something. If you contact a salesman do not be tempted by price, but investigate rather the quality if you would not be disappointed with your purchase. Publicity seekers are apt to get the wrong sort on this day unless the greater amount of diplomacy is used. Investigations, especially those prompted by morbid curiosity in all likelihood will be the primary reason for many people being mentally disturbed. Serve your friends on this August 12, for at some later date you may have a favor to ask of them. Married and engaged couples and those seriously interested in someone else must avoid allowing a mercenary spirit to inspire any action, for if they do it is likely to be discovered, and unhappiness may result.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington — The state department has received its "representation fund" for 1937 and again for 1938 after being long years without it, but even so the sum is so small it is almost futile in present troublesome times when such a fund is badly needed.

The "representation fund" is money for use by diplomats in throwing parties for other diplomats and people who count. By that means they create good will—and get needed information.

The fund has had an unusual history. About 12 years ago, after much pleading and representation the state department received $60,000 to help its ministers and ambassadors foot the heavy bill for entertainment forced upon them. It wasn't nearly enough, but it was a start.

Along came the depression and a desire to lop off odds and ends of appropriations that seemed unnecessary. The entertainment fund might have survived but for the discovery that some of the diplomats sent to countries where liquor was permitted—that included most—served liquor to their guests. That was too much. The fund was abolished and any money American envoys had from then on they took from their salaries or from their own pockets.

The year 1937 brought a return of the appearance of prosperity and the state department, wonder of wonders, received $125,000 for entertainment. It was repeated in the 1938 appropriation bill.

Envoys Underpaid
Traditionally, American diplomats are underpaid. The ambassador to England, along with others of the ambassadorial rank, gets $17,500. His residence is furnished by the government, or rather on behalf of the government. Actually J. P. Morgan presented the government with a home for the ambassador in London several years ago. There are posts where the ambassador and ministers do not get residences. They have to pay for them out of salary.

Ministers, next in rank to ambassadors, get $10,000 a year. But frequently the cost of holding such jobs exceeds the pay. That is why ambassadors to the big countries like England and France are men of private means, able and willing to spend from their own pockets to keep up their end.

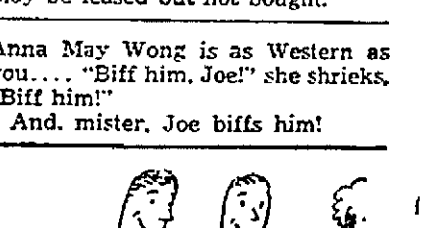

Other countries for the most part don't put such a burden on their envoys. The British ambassador to the United States, Sir Ronald Lindsay, reportedly gets $75,000 a year salary and allowances. He lives in a very elaborate embassy out at the end of swank Massachusetts avenue.

Other Salaries
Ambassador Saito from Japan gets $40,000 salary and allowances, and a residence.
Both these diplomats can, and do, entertain often and well. But American ambassadors abroad had only their salaries and a split from $125,000 to "do the necessary."

The equipment for one battery of field artillery costs $250,000, two times the whole amount the state department gets for entertainment. But then, it has always cost more for war than for peace.

Appleton Party Visits National Parks in West

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Alvord and their daughter, Evelyn, 215 W. Atlantic street, Miss Lulu Alvord, Shiocton, and Harold Schulz, Milwaukee, have returned from a 44 weeks' trip through the west. Among the points of interest they visited were the Black Hills of South Dakota, Yellowstone, Glacier, Mt. Rainier and Zion National parks, Bryce canyon, Estes park, Pike's peak and a few cities in the northern part of Mexico. While in Los Angeles the party visited with Robert Alvord, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Alvord, and also with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schneller, formerly of Appleton. On their return trip they stopped in Salt Lake City, Denver and Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Meyer, 815 E. Winnebago street, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Smith, Milwaukee, were guests Tuesday at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Zierke, Sunset lake, Waupaca. The afternoon and evening were spent swimming and playing cards, the latter pastime turning out to be a severe blow to the men's pride. According to reports from the feminine half of the party, when six hands of schafkopf had been played, the women winning all six, Mr. Zierke called the game off.

The Smiths and their son, Kenneth, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer at their home on E. Winnebago street.

Mrs. Stewart Neuville and her children, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who had been visiting for the last several days at the Harold Van Bussum home, 508 W. Summer street, left this morning for their home.

Hollywood—Mary Astor is looking forward to a stage play in New York next fall, but not definitely. Her recent Santa Barbara appearances were a sort of warm-up for the stage return she's been planning these many years—ever since her one previous stage effort here revived a career that had waned with the silents.
Josephine Hutchinson told the prop man how to tell the real diamond bracelet from the phoney one, needed for a later sequence, in her picture "This Is My Wife."
"Rub them both in your hair," she instructed. "The phoney one will lose its sparkle." He did, and it worked. "It's just an old trick of the jewelry business," said Josephine.
Murphy are going to be surrounded by ectoplasm in the picture simply because Errol Taggart, the director, was once an amateur magician. Taggart has worked out a series of weird effects for the scene and mystery scenes.
Have droll Eric Blore tell you about the time he was locked in the local hoosegow on a fake charge of inebriation. "Why, Warner's—in nine months!"

The Misses Marie and Rosalie Van Abel, Dundee, entertained at a farewell party Monday evening in honor of Miss Helen Vander Loop, who is to leave for Hay Springs, Neb., shortly after her marriage to Francis Peters on Aug. 23. Cards were played and prizes awarded to Miss Lucille Rademacher and Mrs. Henry Seibers.

Guests present included Mrs. John Bergman, the Misses Evelyn Klister and Grace Coonen, Appleton; the Misses Helen Vander Loop and Nancy Van Abel, Hollandtown; Mrs. Henry Seibers and Mrs. Roy Smith, Kaukauna; the Misses Lucille Rademacher and Germaine Coonen, Dundee; and Mrs. Roman Wozelka, Milwaukee.

Mrs. Carl Springer, 1417 S. Laws street, was hostess to a small group at her home last night in honor of Miss Annabel Dowes, Milwaukee, who is visiting her cousin, Miss Evelyn Abel. Cards and dancing provided entertainment. The guests included the Misses Florence

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?
THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good wife.
Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness there is a month and a bed at the rest of the time.
No matter how lovely your nerves seem—don't take it out on your husband.
For three generations our women have told another how to "smell" their "vegetable" with this "Ham's Vegetable Compound." It helps Nature to keep the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three orders of life: 1. Transition from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparation for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and "Smell Through."

Mrs. Whelan Wins Ladies' Day Contest

TURNING in a card which showed only 16 putts for 9 holes, Mrs. V. James Whelan was an easy winner of the prize for low score offered Tuesday at Riverside Country club's ladies' day. Mrs. L. R. Watson won the prize for low score on blind holes. After luncheon, bridge was played. Mrs. E. D. Beals scoring high and Mrs. J. W. McLaughlin, second.

The foursome with whom Jake Mathews, pro, will play next Tuesday will be made up of Mrs. Dan Toney, Mrs. John Catlin, Mrs. T. M. Barrows and Mrs. Guy Marston. Beginning that day, August 17, and continuing through Thursday, Aug. 19, qualifying rounds for the club championship will be played.

Members of the Four Leaf Clover club were entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Schultz, 118 W. Seymour street. Schatzkopf was played, with prizes going to Mrs. Lewis Weldon, Mrs. Max Egger and Mrs. Gordon Kitzmiller. Next week Mrs. Herman Selig, 421 E. South River street, will be hostess to the group.

As the result of a vote taken by the club membership, the weekly buffet supper and contract bridge party at Riverview Country club will be held on Thursday this week instead of on Friday as heretofore. Mr. and Mrs. N. de C. Walker will be host and hostess at the affair.

An outdoor picnic supper is planned for junior day at North Shore Golf club Thursday. Arrangements are being made under the direction of Miss Peggy Kimberly, Neenah, who is entertainment chairman for the younger members of the club.

Chilton Youth Hurt In Fall From Bicycle

Chilton—Mark Rehauer, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Rehauer fell from his bicycle Saturday, falling on the handle bar and rupturing his spleen. He was taken to St. Agnes hospital in Fond du Lac, and on Monday his spleen was removed. His condition is reported satisfactory.

Mrs. Otto Hoeser was taken to St. Agnes hospital at Fond du Lac for treatment last Thursday.

Mrs. Adrian Kettenhofen and son Jimmie, of Menasha, visited friends in this city over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Kettenhofen were residents of this city about twelve years ago, the former being manager of the Meil-Blumber garage. Mr. Kettenhofen died nine years ago.

Miss Genevieve Moeck, commercial teacher at the high school, returned from Whitewater where she attended the summer session. Other members of the school faculty who attended summer school were Paul Krueger and Miss Caroline Marken, who attended courses at the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. A. R. Vahldeick celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday at her home Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Vahldeick have been residents of this city for more than 60 years and celebrated the sixty-fourth anniversary of their marriage last spring.

Hold Last Rites for John Burns at Seymour

Seymour—Funeral services for John Burns, 57, who died early Sunday morning at his home on route 4, Seymour, after a week's illness with pneumonia, were held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. John's Catholic church in Seymour with the Rev. Peter Zey in charge. Burial took place in the parish cemetery.

Mr. Burns was born Sept. 18, 1881, in Liberty, Manitowoc county. He farmed near Seymour the last 20 years.

Survivors are four brothers: Michael and Joseph, Milwaukee; Ed, California; and Thomas, Seymour; one sister, Mrs. Henry Ebmer, Milwaukee.

Madison Driver Is Held After Fatal Car Crash

Madison—(7)—John L. Collins, 45, of Madison, died in a hospital today of injuries suffered Monday when a car in which he was a passenger struck a stop-and-go light at a highway intersection near here.

Copier E. A. Fischer said he would call an inquest.

Herman Tilker, 23, of Madison, driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of driving while under influence of liquor.

GENERAL WEATHER
Showers have occurred since yesterday morning over western Lake Superior sections of the Mississippi valley and central plains states and the St. Lawrence valley and northeastern states, but fair weather is general this morning over all the central and western portions of the country, except that it is unsettled over the lake region.

Temperatures are now rising over the northern Rocky mountains and the Canadian northwest, and continued warm is general over the central states, with high maxima recorded yesterday at many stations in that section.

Thunderstorms are expected in this section this afternoon or early tonight, followed by fair weather Thursday.

300 Observe Comet Through Lawrence Observatory 'Scope

Over 300 persons viewed the comet through the telescope last night at the Lawrence College observatory. Carl Elias, amateur astronomer in charge, announced today. The comet was seen clearly, the tail being particularly visible.

The comet can still be seen rather clearly for about the next three or four days. Mr. Elias said, and after that it may be many thousands of years before it returns, as it follows almost a straight path after going around the sun. Monday night a smaller group was at the observatory, but their view was partly obscured by clouds. Jupiter, however, was plainly visible, and the shadow of one of Jupiter's moons could be plainly seen across the face of the planet.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press
ANGEL CLASHES
Atlanta—An angel fell out of heaven last night and lost a tooth, dented her harp and crumpled a wing.

The angel, Louise Taylor, was playing in "Heaven Bound," a musical religious drama.

Angel Taylor fell from a cloud 20 feet above the stage. After hospital treatment for facial bruises, she prepared to return to her celestial post for tonight's performance.

RED, OR ELSE
Council Bluffs, Iowa—Mayor William Guilfoyle served notice on Fire Chief William Grote that the latter had just five days to carry out the mayor's instructions or be suspended for 30 days without pay.

The mayor ordered the chief to paint his mechanic's automobile red. The chief had it painted blue.

Dealers Told to Keep Doors Locked at Night
Business men and store keepers are urged by Chief of Police George T. Prim to make it a habit to check doors of their business places every night to be sure they are locked. Leaving doors of business places open at night is a dangerous practice. Night patrolmen of the police department check doors and notify occupants in case they are not locked.

Bloomers Compulsory In Golf's Big Shot Era

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Among the souvenirs of my futile search—though always earnest—on a time to hold toes of sand.

Tees thus molded were firmer than those made with the fingers, and this jewelry was supposed to cut several strokes off one's score. It didn't help me, however, and neither did the rubber tee with a small nest in which the golf ball reposed, nor the silver peg which was attached to a silver spike by a silver chain.

You stuck the peg and the spike into the ground, and the idea was that if you did hit the peg with your club the chain and spike would prevent your knocking it to hell and gone. The first time out with my silver chain outfit, however, I hit the peg a terrible lick, and, bam, away went the peg, chain and spike into a water hole, lost for good.

Wives used to give their husbands such things for Christmas. The salesman would say, "Does he play golf?" and she would say "Yes," and he would say, "Well, here is something he would really appreciate."

They were always getting up things that were going to save strokes. Another souvenir still around somewhere was a jewelry thing like a gold card of honorary life membership in the National assn. of Deputy Gamewardens.

Westbrook Is Very Bad at Mathematics
It was engraved with something like a rainbow, with numerals along the hump, and you were supposed to pull this out, squirt through a hole in the middle, divide by two, and thus decide which iron club to use from where you were. This was something like artillery work, however, and as I am very bad at mathematics—see, expense account—I made some bad miscalculations, used the wrong clubs and lost many strokes.

My enthusiasm for golf was dissolved into resignation now, and I am able to smile over my striving and optimism with which I clutched at new inventions. Everybody was golf crazy then, and it seemed that most of the business in the country was done on the fairways of swampy meadow.

It was the "big shot" era, and a man had a sort of feeling that he was getting on in the world when he would meet casually in the locker room of a golf club over a quart highball class someone who was vice president of a big ball-bearing company which regularly advertised in color in the Saturday Evening Post.

You could pick up tips on the market or you might get invited out some rich citizen's home where there was a private bar completely stocked with stuff that he had brought in on his yacht.

Most of them have been cut down to size long since, and golf now is just a game that a few people play for fun if they can get time after scuffling for a living. It isn't much fun, though. On the contrary, it is a fascinating agony, for even the best of them are always moaning and bleeding internally over some putt that hung in an approach that took a bad hop into a quarry.

Men Shot Days
In Big Shot Days
Men Wore Bloomers
In the big shot days of golf a man had to dress up in a masquerade costume to distinguish himself from the hired help, who dressed like human beings. Bloomers, of course, were practically compulsory, usually those enormous, double-breasted square-riggers, tweedy and garish, which called for long ribald stockings preferably with tassels.

There was a period along about the time when Carnarvon was ghoul-ing around in Tut-Ankh-Amen's grave when the golf costumes came out with a line of sweaters adorned with picture-writing, and, to make matters worse, the stylish hat for these ensembles was a cross between the French beret and the tam shanter.

These were supposed to take strokes off your game, too, and so were the golf shoes which had fringers on the tongues and spikes set a certain way. Most of the old Scotch pros viewed all this with quiet disgust, but the young American pros who were coming along, Italian and Irish ex-caddies, mostly, thought these effects were the nuts. They used to compete every year for the title of best-dressed pro, which was conferred by some clothing company.

Spikes Were Intended to Keep Feet Planted
It was funny about the spikes. They were intended to keep the feet firmly planted for the pivot, but sometimes they anchored a man so fast that he would pull his spine out of joint and spend six months in a casing of poured concrete in some hospital.

Once some pro working for a company that manufactured golf tools hit upon the idea of marking a circle in the middle of the blades of the irons. This was called the Beauty spot, or something similar, and the plot was that if you hit ball right on the beauty spot it would sail in a beautiful arching flight, whistling that delicious fuzzy sound that golfers dream of, and drop right on the pin. But the trick was to hit the ball with the spot, and I was just as bad off as before.

I have had lessons, too, but nothing ever did any good. Nothing ever will. If I had any manhood I would give all my tackle to some kid, but I suppose my widow will be the one to do it when I am gone.

Trump Suit Agreement May Take Many Forms

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Agreement" on a trump suit may take any one of several different forms that range from enthusiastic support down to merely tacit acceptance. One of these forms is not always understood, even by very fair players. The situation described in today's hand, which actually occurred in a far-better-than-average rubber game in New York, will, I hope, serve as a valuable object lesson.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 diamond 1 spade 2 hearts Pass
Pass 2 spades Pass Pass
3 diamonds Pass Pass Pass

The most significant call in the above series of bids apparently went right over North's head. That was South's pass to the two heart bid! By this pass South clearly voiced acceptance of hearts. The fact that, on the next round, over West's repeated spade bid and pass, South passed North and East, South then rebid his diamonds should have meant little or nothing to the North player. Surely North could not expect a direct raise in hearts from South if the latter held only two hearts, but just as surely he was marked with those two (and possibly by his previous acceptance. It was all very well for North to consider that he had reasonable support for a rebid diamond suit. What he overlooked was that it would be perfectly normal and logical for South to rebid even a fair five card diamond suit rather than support with only two trumps a suit that, for all South knew, was only five long. North's pass over West's spade rebid was, in itself an urge for partner to take further action. The pass could not convey weakness, since North had already given notice by his free two heart bid that he was fairly strong.

As a matter of fact, North had a pretty good penalty double of two spades, even though the opponents were not vulnerable. At least that action would have been highly preferable to leaving South to three diamonds. Two spades doubled would have returned a dividend of 500 points, whereas three diamonds could not be made by normal play.

West opened the club queen. Dummy won, and the heart finesse was tried immediately. West took the king and, not knowing about his partner's singleton, returned a heart. The ace won, the low club was ruffed, and the diamond ten was let ride. West cashed his singleton king, and led another club. Declarer won and, when the play of the diamond ace revealed the bad news, led a low spade toward dummy.

West, who had by this time formed a pretty fair picture of South's and East distribution, jumped up with the ace, and returned a spade which East ruffed.

Declarer, having lost four tricks, had to concede the setting trick to the diamond jack, since it was not possible to cup it.

Had North taken three diamonds back to three hearts, as he should, he would have had no trouble in fulfilling his contract, and probably could have made an extra trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: In progressive bridge, does one get the game bonus for fulfilling a contract of three diamonds doubled?

Answer: Many players seem to have trouble on this point. I have stated many times that a double or redouble is an integral part of the contract. Thus, three diamonds doubled and made should be scored as 120 points, which, of course, is a game, and therefore the declarer is entitled to the game bonus.

My Neighbor Says—

Set out strawberry plants now, so that they will be well-established before the ground freezes. Soil should be rich and not too dry.

Fresh vegetables of all kinds are valuable to the growing child because of their rich mineral-salts content. Of these, spinach, chard, carrots, beets, boiled onions or lima beans are good. Lima beans require a great deal of cooking. Starchy vegetables, too, such as potatoes may be given, boiled, baked or mashed, but never fried. Macaroni and spaghetti may be given sometimes, but hot, highly seasoned sauces should not be served with them to a child.

Rambler roses bloom on last year's wood. Bushes must not be cut back until they are through blooming.

Washing machine motors should be oiled not often than every 3 to 6 months. They like other equipment with electric motors should be protected from dampness. Moisture inside a motor damages insulation and makes lubrication difficult. Extreme heat and extreme cold also affect lubrication in motors.

To make a gelatin dessert in layers, divide jelly in three portions and put one portion in bottom of mold. When firm, decorate, if desired, with candied cherries and cover with a second portion, beaten until light. When that is firm, cover with a layer of plain jelly. Mold, chill, cut in slices and serve. The different layers may be colored pink and green.

Never allow potatoes to stand in water in which they are cooked. They absorb the water and become soggy.

Parents Find Method of Giving John, 16, a Lesson

BY ANGELO PATRI

John, aged sixteen, was at home for the summer vacation, for some reason, unknown and unfathomable, he felt that vacation meant doing precisely as he wanted to do without regard for the rights of any one else, particularly his mother's rights. He seemed to think she had none. She might cook and serve his meals, attend to his room, his laundry and his bathroom supplies, and cleaning up afterward, at whatever time he chose to elect. He went to bed when he pleased and rose when he pleased. Talking, pleading, scolding and threatening had the same effect—none.

"I've got to do something. I can't go on another day," said mother to father, and father agreed. "He is too old to spank, too obtuse to reason with. I'll have to do something to shock him into realization of his place in the household. But what will it be?"

"I'll tell you," said father, after they had talked over and discarded some scheme after the other, "we'll leave him the house. We won't say another word. We'll pack our bags tonight. In the morning out we go. Tell the milkman to leave no more milk. Take Towser to Mrs. Lynch. You go to Gram's house and I'll stay at the 'Y' downtown. We leave no address. He can get me any time at the office, but he will have to come after me. We'll have the telephone disconnected. We're going to leave him high and dry so he will appreciate what we mean in the home. He needs a good jolt."

Mother was afraid. Maybe he would be sick. And who would feed him? And maybe he would get into trouble.

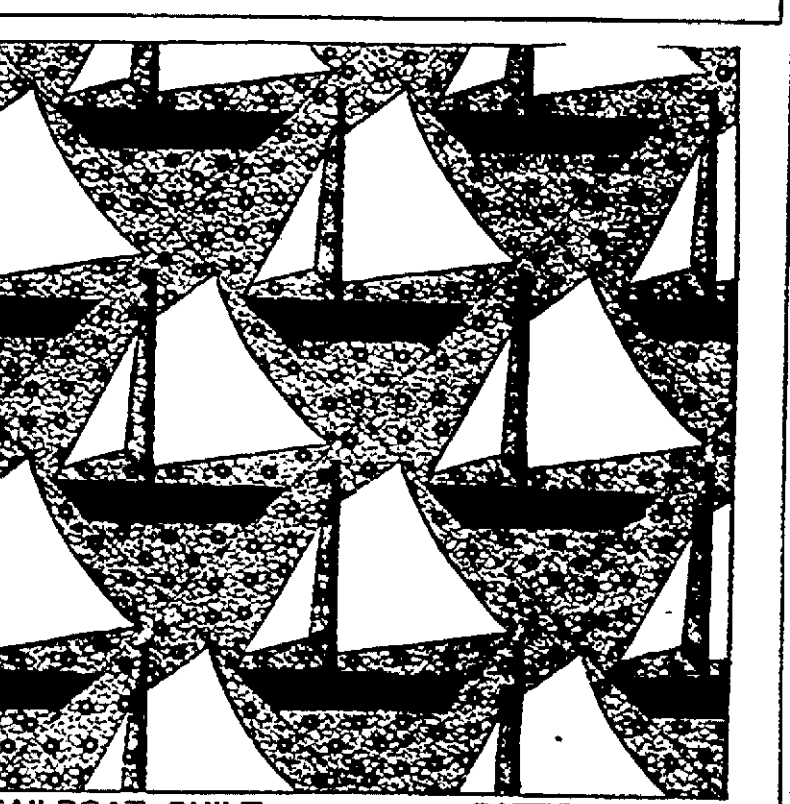

"That's his business from tomorrow on. I have an idea that he will wake up about three days from now and get a new point of view. And don't you say another word to him about anything. We've said enough."

Next morning John rose about ten-thirty. The house seemed unusually still. He went to the bathroom. No soap, no towels. Father's shaving kit was not in sight. Funny, he called. No answering call from mother. Now thoroughly awake John looked into his parents' bedroom. Everything in order, beds made, shades evenly drawn. Funny, he ran down to the kitchen. Nobody about, no preparation for his breakfast. On the table he found a note.

"Dear John: Your mother and I thought you might get on as well without us as with us and have left you the house. Yours, "Father."

Now what in the world?

SAILBOATS ON A SLUMBER QUILT

Sailboats a-sail on a "Slumber" quilt are as lovely to behold as they are easy to piece. You can make this "seascape" quilt from just the simplest of patches, keeping the boats uniform as shown. If you prefer, gay scraps may make up the various sail patches. It's an 8 inch block. Pattern 1549 contains complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Appleton Post-Crescent, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number your name and address.

Lists Ideal Dimensions For Figure

BY ELSIE PIERCE

FROM time to time I have letters, chiefly from very, very young things, asking what the ideal dimensions are... what should one's bust measurement be, and one's hips, and ankles and so on.

I usually hesitate to give the so-called ideal dimensions. First, because they vary from time to time. Second, because there is too much danger of their being taken too seriously. I can't see that it matters very much if the waistline is one inch more than it should be or the ankle a half inch less. The general impression of proportion, the picture you flash as a well-molded, well-made figure—that's far more important than perfect dimensions. Then, too, remember that one's build must be taken into consideration. The short, stocky persons naturally will measure more about the hips, bust, waist, and ankles as well as wrists than the tall, lean individual. Again, the matter of good proportion enters. So long as you are easy on the eyes of most people, so long as you don't bulge here or protrude there, you don't have to be too concerned about the tape measure.

As a matter of fact, many women who are actually twenty or more pounds overweight don't look it or at least don't make people very conscious of it because they "carry it so nicely" meaning that it is distributed so evenly over the entire body. Were I to ask for a dispensation from Divine Providence I would call for a well proportioned body and leave the perfect dimensions to the show girls.

Today's Standards

In order to satisfy those who have repeatedly said, "Give us the information anyway," here they are for what they are worth. Take your tape measure in hand, play with it, see how near perfection you are. If you are perfect, fine. My advice is: try to keep the sylph-like, lovely lines. If you don't measure up or down, don't let that down your spirits. Perfect proportions and perfect posture will give the lie to any lack of perfection in measurements, I assure you.

Here are today's standards as called for by a noted illustrator: The female 34 inches, the calf (largest part of leg below the knee) 13 to 13 1/2; the knee cap 15 to 15 1/2; the waist 25 to 26, the bust 33 to 34. Five feet six and a half inches tall is the preferred height, but if you are taller don't hide your head like an ostrich and if you are shorter, don't hang it in shame. Adopt the proper lines and look your loveliest.

My bulletin "Lovely Lines" is yours for the asking. Please include a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. Address Miss Elsie Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent. (Copyright 1937)

INTRIGUING SALAD DRESSINGS

Thousand Island Dressing

1-3 cup French 2 tablespoons dressing green peppers, 1 tablespoon chopped
2 tablespoons lemon juice
chopped celery
Mix and chill ingredients.

2 egg yolks 1-3 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons lard
flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon celery salt

Beat yolks. Add dry ingredients. Add rest of the ingredients. Cook slowly and stir until thick. Dressing becomes thick and creamy. Cool. Add a little sweet, sour or whipped cream to the dressing just before it is served.

Russian Dressing

1 cup stiff mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 tablespoon minced dill
1 teaspoon pickles
Mix ingredients with fork. Chill and serve.

Old-Fashioned Salad Dressing

4 egg yolks 1-3 cup granulated sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon paprika

Beat yolks. Add dry ingredients. When mixed add vinegar, onion juice and water. Cook slowly and stir constantly until a thick, creamy dressing forms. Beat and add cream. Cool and chill.

White felt hats may be easily cleaned with a paste made of arrowroot and magnesia. Allow it to stand until dry, then brush off.

Dix Disapproves of Old Age Limit on Marriages

BY DOROTHY DIX

An eminent divorce court judge declares that marriage of persons past 60 years of age should be prohibited by law. Oh fie, judge! Nonsense! Have a heart. Because one rich old man has married a flapper under the fond delusion she loved him, and himself late husband's insurance money in a gigolo, don't doom all the sixtyish to lonely old age.

Your own experience must have taught you that neither age nor brains nor previous condition of servitude seems to have the slightest effect on an individual in picking out a mate. We see senile grandpas and school boys making the same mistakes. Shrewd men of the world and learned college professors display the same lack of judgment that morons do. Men and women who have had two or three divorces apiece keep on being repeaters.

There is no special period of life when men and women are marriage-wise and exempt from making mistakes in choosing their partners, but if there is going to be any time limit put upon wedding bells they should be forbidden to ring out for those in their teens, not for those in their 60s. Statistics show that a hundred boy-and-girl marriages go on the rocks where one old man and woman marriage survives.

The judge who believes that all people of 60 should be prevented from marrying also forgets that 60 isn't as new as it used to be. It isn't the Winter of Life. It is just Indian Summer. There was a time when men and women of 60 were supposed to be senile and doddling, with no further interest in life and nothing to do but to sit in a corner and reflect on their latter end. But most of the sixtyish you know now are as frisky as you please; up on their toes going places and doing things, and they haven't the slightest intention of dying for the next fifteen or twenty years.

Half of the men who run the country and carry on the big enterprises are 60 or over, and they are just as capable of picking out a wife as they ever were which may not be saying much, but what man at what age knows what kind of a package he is going to draw out of the matrimonial grab-bag?

Personally, I am strong for elderly people marrying, provided they

FLAME TRAIL

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon's Lazy Nine ranch house and barn burnt, Josh Hastings—who wants to buy the ranch and marry Kay—invites her to the Flying Six. She refuses, disdaining him, but young sister Babs and Aunt Kate go. Kay plans to rebuild, but the insurance money goes to the mortgage. Ted Gaylor, a puncher Kay hired impulsively, stirs the outfit to cut its own lumber and rebuild without pay. She is on her way to buy the only available timber land when a Hastings puncher lassoes her, leaves her reposed on the mesa. Meanwhile Ted decides to get an option on the timber for Kay.

Chapter 14

At Old Man Warren's IDING in to Red River over the same route that Kay and he had taken that morning, Ted's thoughts of Kay were so absorbing that the time passed almost as quickly as it had in her actual company.

It seemed impossible that he had known Kay only about 24 hours! Because of that meeting, which might have had such a different ending if anyone but Ted had found him at that act of desperation, his whole outlook on life was changed.

Just the relief of knowing that his mother and sister had a home to come to was enough to make a new man of him. But added to that the thought that he was to be near Kay, helping her and old stories that he or she has heard a hundred times.

Particularly should there be no bar raised against the marriage of widows and widowers in their sixties, because no man and woman who have ever been at the heads of their own houses are ever contented in anybody else's home. Nor can they keep from being pests in any one else's home. They want the freedom, the sense of command, the privilege of doing their own ways, and this they can only have under their own roofs. Never in their children's homes. And it makes for the happiness not only of themselves, but of their children and grandchildren when they team up with some other lonely old widow or widower and start housekeeping again.

It is a long, dark road, that last lap of the journey of life. Happy the old man and woman who can find a companion to tread it with them.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

CARDS, LEAVING CARDS, AND RECEIVING VISITORS

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please give in detail the uses to which a man can put visiting cards. I would like to order some for my brother as I know he has only his business cards on which the name of his company appears, but as he is a bachelor living alone my husband feels that such a present will be utterly useless to him.

Answer: A man uses his card whenever he pays a formal visit. For example, at the house of a hostess upon whom he pays a party call, or at a house where there is illness, or as an expression of condolence where there is mourning. He also sends his visiting card with flowers to a woman, or to any sick friend, or with a wedding present to a bride. He also writes an introduction on his card for some one going to a distant city where he has friends. He may also write an invitation to a cocktail party or a small informal dance or any other not too important party across the top of his visiting card.

Dear Mrs. Post: When calling on people who live in a hotel, how is one supposed to present one's card? I of course am referring to people who are simply acquaintances on whom I have never before called.

Answer: Write in pencil the name of the persons upon whom you are paying a visit across the top of your card and give it to a clerk at the desk, either to be sent to their room, or to be put in their letter box to tell them that you have been to see them.

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the customary length of time one is supposed to wait before returning the visit paid us by new acquaintances? And are we supposed to leave our cards if we find the people at home?

Answer: Within the week is considered most polite. Yes, leave your cards—unless the left none on you. In this case it is best to leave none unless they are out.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband's real Christian name is one that he has not used for years. In fact, I never knew what it was until just before I married him. Every one has always called him Bill. When I went to order visiting cards for us I was told that to engrave "Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown" would be a questionable taste. The engraver suggested that we use "William" but my husband has never been called that nor is his real name William. What should we do about this?

Answer: The engraver is right. A formal card—and an engraved card is necessarily formal—ought really to be engraved "William" whether he is called that or not. If you really must use Bill then choose a plain blocky lettering—in other words, letters that are engraved but which give the impression of printing. As a matter of fact, this suggestion is rather in accord with the modern fashion! Cottons look like wools, wools look like silks, and silks look like cottons—so why not engraving that looks like printing.

Old Gardener Says:

At this season of the year, garden makers who have evergreen trees often notice that some of them are taking on a brown and rusty appearance at the base of the needles. This trouble is due to red spider, which is very active this month. The pest does not eat the leaves, but sucks the juices. Accordingly it cannot be killed by poison, but must be reached by a contact spray which will close the pores. Sever I sprays of this kind are for sale at the seed stores, and if used with a spray pump will make it possible to control this pest and save the trees.

SOTAL Drummers Tired But Happy After Winning At State Legion Meeting

Kaukauna — Triumphant, the Sons of the American Legion Drum and Bugle corps returned to Kaukauna at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon after winning first place in competition at the state legion convention at Milwaukee.

Two of their number received individual prizes, Earl Treptow, who won the state championship in bugling, and Ralph Schubring, who won second with his drum solo.

Plans for a civic victory program for the champions were started today, as Mayor Lewis F. Nelson appointed a citizens' committee to make arrangements for a reception of the drum and bugle corps by the city. Members of the committee are Dale Andrews, chairman, Jerry Kain, John Van De Loo and C. P. Goetzman.

Back home, the champions had only one thought in common when they returned yesterday — they were tired. After their victory march through the city, from the north side depot to the south side business section and back to the Legion hall on Oak street, they could not get their instruments put away fast enough. They had marched enough for a while.

Parade at Home Tiredness was written on the faces of all the youngsters, even though they strutted in their best championship form as they paraded through the streets, and the townspeople stood along the curbs to greet them.

"We went to bed at 3 o'clock last night, after the march of champions in downtown Milwaukee," one of the boys explained. "Then we had to get up at five this morning and walk a mile to the station to get a train and the train didn't come till 10 o'clock."

The boys lived in barracks at the state fair grounds at West Allis and had a little trouble in getting transportation to the convention activities in other parts of the city.

Perform 15 Minutes They performed for 15 minutes in the competition Sunday and were judged against the other six entries on appearance, maneuvering, playing and general performance.

Blusters were the order of the day as the youngsters came home, and many limping boys in blue sweaters, white trousers and Sam Brown belts were seen trudging through Kaukauna at 3 o'clock yesterday.

Twilight League Teams Tie, 5-5, as Night Ends Game

Thilmany, Kappell Teams Forced to Quit After Seven Innings

Kaukauna — Early darkness brought another tie game to the twilight softball league last night when Thilmany mill and Kappell teams battled to a 5-5 tie as they were forced to quit at the end of the seventh inning. The standings of the league remain with Thilmany and Pantry Lunch tied for the top and Kappell in fourth with two and two.

Tonight the South Side Merchants in third place, strong this half of the season, will face the Thilmany office force, who since their entrance into the league after the second half started, have yet to taste of victory.

In theory the mill outfit should have had an easy time with Kappell last night. They let their speed ball hurler, George Block, do the catching, as Bob Driessen, who suffered a broken nose in Monday's fray, went to the outfield. Bill Kuchelmeister led the slab, Kappell turned out to be a fighting opponent that matched Thilmany's run for run, and even held the edge in the third inning, 4-3.

Score in First

Both teams registered one run in the first inning. Both got two runs in the second. Paul Balice drove in two team mates, who had walked, for Kappell and Thilmany scored on two hits and a sacrifice fly. Kappell took the lead in the third, but Thilmany matched the run in the fourth to tie the count at 4-4.

In the fifth each team scored its final run. After Radder walked and Ves Kappell singled, Joel Vils doubled and Radder scored for Kappell. George Block's home run did the trick for the mill crew.

Kugge's pitching record looked much like one of Block's score sheets, replete with strikeouts and allowing few hits. Bill struck out nine, walked eleven and gave seven hits. For Kappell, Bill Alger had a good day, allowing only five hits, while he struck out five and walked four. Harold Walsh's two doubles in three trips to the plate formed the outstanding performance at the plate, in a game that didn't see much slugging.

Miss Lucille Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Cooper and son, Fred, returned to Milwaukee, after spending a few days with Mrs. Cooper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Collins.

Conservation Club Gets Ten Cans of Bass for Planting

Kaukauna — Ten cans of black bass for planting in nearby waters were received from the state conservation department by the Kaukauna Conservation club this morning.

A group of club members including Matt Verfurth, Percy Chamberlain and Anton Rieth went to Green Bay this morning to get the fish when they arrived on a Milwaukee Road train there.

The fish, which are reclaimed from the Mississippi river at La Crosse will be planted in the stone quarry and possibly in several creeks running into Lake Winnebago. This is the second shipment of fish sent the Kaukauna club this summer, some pickerel having been sent in June.

Kau-Free 4-H Club Members Win $40 In Prizes at Fair

Marion Van Vreede Wins Right to Compete in State Judging Contest

Kaukauna — Members of the Kau-Free 4-H club returned from the Seymour fair Monday with more than $40 in prize money won by them for their stock and farm products exhibits at the fair.

Miss Marion Van Vreede, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Van Vreede, route 2, was named the best girl judge in the county contest for 4-H members, and will be sent to the state fair, Milwaukee, to represent Outagamie county in the state judging contest there.

Another award won by Miss Van Vreede was that of being one of the four attendants to the county dairy queen, who with the attendants was chosen from 12 representatives of various 4-H clubs. Girls were selected because of their excellence in health, grace, poise and personality.

Wins First Place

Vernon Sweet, who lives at the John Dolan farm, route 2, won first place in county cattle judging, scoring 280 points out of a possible 300. The Kau-Free club won second in the best club exhibit for their group activity, and Earl Krueger and Vernon Sweet received a third in a demonstration of cleaning dairy utensils.

Seven boys of the club won prizes with their holstein stock and their farm products. Winners and the classification of their stock were: Robert Kavanaugh, second, junior heifer; Orville Romanesko, second, junior heifer calf; Earl Krueger first with a senior bull, second with a senior heifer calf, first with a barley sheaf, and first with a peck of sample barley; Vernon Sweet, second, junior heifer calf; Raphael Romanesko, first, junior heifer calf; Kenneth Romanesko, third, senior heifer calf; and Mark Krueger, first, junior calf and third senior heifer calf.

Five girls won prizes. They are Miss Marion Van Vreede, first, pajamas; Miss Marguerite Van Vreede, first with cookies and second with bread; Miss Helen Van Vreede, second with cookies and first with bread; Miss Mary Heindl, second on five jars of preserved fruit; Miss Carol Krueger, two firsts on lingerie. Miss Krueger also appeared in the fair dress review.

Social Items

Kaukauna — Prizes in bridge were won by Miss Mae La Point, Mrs. Charles Schell and Mrs. William Gillen as the Just For Fun club met at the home of Mrs. E. G. Driessen Monday night. The group will meet in two weeks at the home of Miss Veronica Berens.

Boy Scout Troop 31, Holy Cross troop, will meet at 8:30 tonight at the Kaukauna Gun club.

The Royal Neighbors will hold their regular business meeting at 7:30 tonight at the Odd Fellows hall, E. Second street.

Miss Blanche Gerend became president of the Business and Professional Women's club, to fill the unexpired term of Miss Nedra Nickles, who moved to Hudson Falls, N. Y., last month, at the meeting Monday of the group. The gathering was a picnic meeting at the Kaukauna Golf course.

Members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Brokaw Memorial Methodist and Episcopal church will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon with Mrs. H. D. Conkey. Election of officers is planned.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Jack Blake and Robert Helf returned to Kaukauna after spending a 2-weeks' vacation at Shawano lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landreman and family spent Sunday visiting relatives at Fond du Lac.

Thelma Durke, Flint, Mich., is visiting with relatives and friends in Kaukauna.

Miss Gertrude Kohler, who spent the last week visiting with her sister, Mrs. Tom McGoey, returned to her home in Weyerhaeuser.

Scouts Will Make Test Hike Tuesday

Troop 20 to Present Water Safety Program Aug. 23

Kaukauna — Arrangements were made for a test-passing hike for Tuesday and plans were laid for a water safety program to be presented Aug. 23 at the meeting last night of Boy Scout Troop 20 at Thousand Islands, under the direction of Wallace Mooney, scoutmaster. About 20 scouts attended.

Donald Esler, Russell Toms and Robert Dougherty were named to the committee to take charge of the water program, which will be held at the stone quarry two weeks from last night. Correct methods of life saving, swimming and canoeing will be invited to attend, according to the plans.

Tests were scheduled for Tuesday for the first class scout badge and for merit badges in swimming and marksmanship. Scouts attempting to pass the first class qualifications are Russell Toms, Donald Esler, Carl Hilgenberg, Earl Liedtke, John Lindstrom and Richard Hoehne.

Application for merit badges in public health, swimming and first aid were handed in last night by Russell Toms. Final instruction were given to the eight boys who are to leave Sunday to spend a week at Gardner Dam, scout camp on the Wolf river, north of Keshena.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

The Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Strassburger, Long Island, N. Y., were guests at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. John Scheib over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Steckling and Mrs. E. Prochow, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hansen, returned to their homes in Merrill Sunday.

FLAME TRAIL

"What's she after? Started already to have a fling with her insurance money?"

"Maybe," Ted gladly let his host put his own interpretation on Kay's purpose. The less he guessed Kay's vital need for the property the better.

"Well, if she wants it that bad, strikes me she'll pay more, now that she's got all that money to sling around," the old prospector announced with cunning. "You tell her I ain't selling for a mite less than $20 an acre."

Ted turned carelessly toward the door. "No point telling her that," he observed. "There's plenty of timberland to be bought at $10 an acre and even less. I'll just pick it up somewhere else without bothering you any more. Kay thought you'd like to sell and told me to give you the first chance." He pulled open the door. "So long."

"Hi, there! Wait a minute! Yuh don't need to be in such a doggone rush! I didn't say I wouldn't sell, did I?" Old Man Warren pulled him back. "Have it your own way," he capitulated, adding greedily. "Where's the 25 bucks?"

"We'll get this down in black and white first," Ted sat down at the rough pine-board table and drew up a memorandum of the transaction, which Old Man Warren signed.

An Optical Illusion? "Here you are," Ted handed him the money and put the precious memorandum in his pocket, smiling as he watched the old prospector count it over with loving care. "You're well rid of it," he observed as he turned to the door again. "Buyers aren't any too plentiful these days."

Old Man Warren nodded impatiently, but made no response as he started to count his unexpected wealth again.

With a "So long" that was accepted this time, Ted went out and mounted his horse, well satisfied with his afternoon's work.

Going back at a more leisurely pace, he was about five miles west of Red River, when he noticed a dark object that looked like someone on foot. He reined in and scanned the horizon to confirm his impression, but he could see nothing. Telling himself it was an optical illusion, he dismissed the incident from his mind and pushed on to the Lazy Nine.

The bunk house, he found deserted. Standing a moment on the steps, he turned over in his mind the question of waiting until some one came in off the range to deliver the document to him for Kay, or just leaving it with a note for Seth.

It was a great temptation to wait until Kay came back and give it to her himself. He could just see her eyes sparkle and her nose crinkle up with amusement, when she heard of Old Man Warren's attempt at bargaining.

On the other hand, he ought to be starting for home as soon as possible. As it was, he'd have to ride all night before reaching Blackfoot creek.

Suddenly he heard pounding hoof beats, and the next minute Flicker came in sight, riderless. His reins were dragging and his ears back as he headed on a dead run for the corral.

With a fearful certainty that something had happened to Kay, Ted leaped down the bunk house steps and threw himself into the saddle of his waiting mount, everything forgotten but Kay's safety.

A flash of memory recalled that impression he had had of seeing some one on foot far to the north of him as he rode out from Red River. Was it possible that Kay had had the same hunch he had had about getting the option at once, and that she had ridden in to Red River? And that some accident had happened on the way?

Ted cursed himself for not having investigated then and there, and headed off at a hard gallop in the general direction of the place where he had thought he had glimpsed that figure.

Galvanized To Action

Left to herself, Kay sank back and gave way for a moment to the weak, dizzy feeling that closed over her.

In her half-conscious state she could hear the retreating hoofbeats of Scrap Johnson's horse grow dimmer and dimmer. Finally they died away. The unbroken stillness of the mesa deepened around her and seemed to drag her into its own oblivion.

Fighting down the temptation to let go and drift into it, Kay struggled into a sitting position.

Her jaws ached cruelly under the tightly-tied bandanna, and her legs and arms were unbearably cramped from their forced confinement. But, bad as the physical pain and discomfort was, it was far less than her mental anguish.

She hadn't a doubt but that all her plans for rebuilding had come to nothing. Worse than that, it was practically a foregone conclusion that Josh Hastings would eventually get the ranch.

For the first time, Kay admitted to herself that he was too powerful and unscrupulous for her to fight successfully. Even though her mind recognized this fact, she found hope still persisting.

She realized that that hope centered around Ted Gaylor. Somehow or other, he might get around this last blow, that she had so stupidly brought on herself.

Despite her effort to thrust the thought of Scrap Johnson into the background of her mind and to cling to the conviction that he wouldn't dare to do her any actual harm, a shudder ran over Kay at the thought of his return.

He had all the instincts of a bully, and he had shown himself capable of seeking revenge for the wounds she had inflicted to his vanity.

Her lips burned at the memory of his kiss, and panic seized her as she realized how powerless she was in his hands. Even if he didn't do her any actual harm, she would never get over the sense of degradation that he could drag her down to.

Galvanized to action by this desperate thought, Kay forgot the ranch and everything else in the surge of self preservation that swept over her. She rolled over and struggled up to her knees. The incline of the coulee behind her shut her off from a view of the range, and ruined any chance of her discovery by any passer-by. Not that there was likely to be any one, but it was a hundred to one chance.

Some way or other, she must get up there. Her courage revived with the prospect of an immediate objective to be obtained. Kay gazed piercingly about for some sharp stone on which she might saw through her hands. She could see nothing but small stones and pebbles scattered through the bunch grass of the mesa. Her heart sank.

Ted rides to Kay's rescue, tomorrow, and fights Scrap.

thought of overturning the "cut-ter." It was fixed on props, and made a fairly good "house" for some of the rest of the men.

More important was the question of food. Very little had been brought from the "Wager"—only a few bags of biscuits broken into powder. The waves were too high, for a time, to go back to the vessel, so the shipwrecked men had to live mainly on what food they could find ashore. Seagulls were shot, and wild cherry was picked. Limpets and other shellfish were found along the shore.

One day, three canoes were seen coming toward the island. They were filled with Indians.

Uncle Ray

They cut down the mainmast.

Just 186 years ago last May, the British man-of-war "Wager" sailed near the coast of southern Chile. It was under command of Captain Cheap.

A storm arose. The waves grew high, and the wind blew hard. Some of the topsails were torn from the yards in the fury of the gale.

Through the night, the sailors fought the storm. About four o'clock in the morning the ship struck bottom. The rolling breakers struck it one after another, and at length it became free. Then the sailors found that the rudder was broken, and the pilot could not steer. An effort was made to adjust the sails so the vessel would go toward shore, and this was partly successful. In a little while, it passed between two rocks, and was wedged between them, not a great distance from land. To keep the vessel from being blown over on its side, the sailors cut down the mainmast.

The captain ordered the lifeboats to be lowered, and too many men crowded into the first one. It almost turned over when it touched the water, but was righted and took the men safely to the coast. Other boats followed.

When the men on the shore were counted, it was found they numbered 140. Although they did not learn the fact until later, they were on an island, not on the mainland.

Looking about, they saw they had landed beside a bay. Behind them rose a mountain which they named "Mount Misery."

One of the men explored the nearby woods and came upon a hut which had been built by Indians, but had been deserted. This gave shelter to a few men, but the rest saw no way of guarding themselves from rainfall — until a carpenter

St. Francisville, Ill. —(7)— Years back, Martin Brian, 90-year-old blacksmith, fixed a motor car. He decided he knew all about automobiles and backed the car out of the garage. But he had neglected to learn how to stop, and smashed a plate glass window.

But Brian was persevering. He decided to make his own car, so he'd be sure to know how to operate it.

The finished product rambles about the streets of this Wabash river town, with Brian at the wheel. It's the envy of all the children, and the grownups are interested, at least.

At first he operated it by hand pumping, like a hand car. But now it operates with a washing machine motor. It will run 15 miles an hour, and once dumped Brian in the ditch.

Seymour Nine to Play New London In Night Battle

Brews Slated to Meet Manawa Sunday in Wolf Valley League Tilt

Facing a heavy schedule for the next few days the Knapstein Brews will meet Seymour under the flood lights here Thursday night. The Seymour aggregation is leading the Northern Lakes League with no defeats. Kelly who has been with the local team the past season and who has pitched some good games for New London will be in a Seymour uniform and is expected to be the starting pitcher Thursday night against his old team mates. Seymour expects to send a delegation of 200 rooters for their team.

On Sunday night, Manawa will come here with a strong team to cross bats with the Brews in the Wolf Valley league game. Manawa has always given the Brews a stiff game and no doubt will have the services of a new pitcher. Beckert, who has been going great guns for the Brews will be Manager Polaski's choice for this game as the New London team must win this game to keep in first place.

On Monday night, August 16, the Shevport Colored Giants will be the attraction at Athletic park. This club has one of the best colored teams on the road this season. Every man on the Shevport team is batting over .315.

Mill Head Talks On Safety Before Kimberly Workers

New Rules in Safety Contest are Outlined for Papermakers

Kimberly—Irvine Kersten, superintendent of the Kimberly mill finishing room addressed about 300 employees yesterday in conjunction with the mill safety contest. Kersten said that only those accidents in which people are injured or killed are heard about and the small "would be" accidents in the plant and home receive no publicity and are the ones that need attention.

Accidents like loose hammer heads coming off the handle which may injure someone seriously could easily be avoided by inspecting the tool and reporting it to the foreman. The speaker continued that it is frequently said "I had a close call today" which required quick safety thinking to prevent an accident.

The individual prize was won by Robert Bartman who received a rocker. The departmental prize went to Wilbur Courchane, who was awarded a combined smoking stand and magazine rack. Ten other employees who received prizes are: Roy Wildenberg, Anton Polman, Herman Van Grinsven, Walter Verhagen, Ben Seifert, Paul Grady, Carl Doerfler, Simon Ebben, Harold Arts and Joe Hieting.

Dud Courchane of the personnel office announced that new rules in the safety contest which took effect Tuesday provide that all shift workers who are on vacation or have to work must be registered by 8 o'clock and all day workers on vacation or have to work during the noon hour must be registered by 11 o'clock in the morning on the day of drawing to give those in charge time to get ready. Shift workers receive a registration slip with their checks and day men working can get them from their foreman. Any employee losing his slip or registering twice will be disqualified.

On the twenty-fifth of each month a grand prize will be awarded to an employee whose name is drawn and who shall not have had to report to a doctor because of an accident at any time from the first of the month to the fifteenth, inclusive.

Five smaller prizes will be awarded to five employees whose names are drawn and who are present at the meeting. Shift workers who cannot attend will be given registration slips on which they can sign their name and drop in the box which is provided for that purpose at the mill entrance.

On the tenth of each month a grand prize will also be awarded and ten smaller prizes will be given. The period covered will be from the sixteenth to the last day of the previous month, inclusive. In addition there will be one grand prize awarded to the person whose name is drawn who works in a department in which no employee suffered an accident which requires the

They brought back several pieces of the finished Colorado alabaster as well as some of the raw stone. It is the only place in North or South America where it is mined.

Mrs. Zabel was the former Eunice Rickaby. They are leaving soon for Milwaukee where they will make their home.

Raise Wages of Plywood Workers

Corporation at New London Adopts Minimum Pay Schedule

New London—Minimum wages of 40 cents for men and 37 cents for women were announced today by the American Plywood corporation. The scale was set up through a wage increase of 24 cents per hour effective from Sept. 5, officials stated.

The company authorities met with a representative group of employees last night, and the announcement followed the session. About 300 employees in the three company plants here are affected by the increase.

Employees will meet tonight at the Union hall to discuss proposed organization of a Plywood and Veneer Workers' local union to act as bargaining agency for the workers.

Broccoli was brought to England from Italy in the 16th century.

Rotarians Hear Of Evils Caused By Parole System

Clintonville Attorney Says Many Crimes Perpetrated by Ex-Convicts

Clintonville—Otto L. Olen, Clintonville attorney, talked on "The Evils of the Parole System" to his fellow Rotarians at their Monday noon luncheon at Hotel Marston. Mr. Olen, former district attorney of Waupaca county, said that the present parole regulations are too lenient and that many juvenile criminals are aware of the fact that under the present law they can not be severely punished. The speaker cited statistics showing that 80 per cent of the crimes committed in this country are perpetrated by paroled persons, emphasizing the fact that the system is proving very costly to the country.

Mrs. R. A. Greb and son, Donald, spent Monday and Tuesday at Minneapolis, where the latter enrolled at the University of Minnesota for a course in chemistry. Greb, a graduate of Clintonville high school with the class of 1937, ranked first in the class of over 70 members. He also was prominent in debate activities during his high school career.

Mrs. A. V. Chamberlin left Tuesday evening for New London, Ia., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Clark. She will also visit a brother in Des Moines, Ia., and on the return trip expects to stop in Chicago with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Rulshoff and children, Billie, Douglas and Marion, have returned to their home in this city after a week's vacation in upper Michigan. They visited relatives at Sagola, Marquette and Houghton.

Family Reunion
A reunion of the Welch family took place at the Methodist church parlors in this city Sunday. It had been planned to hold the event in Central Park here, but due to the rain, it was held indoors. A dinner was served at noon to about 35 relatives. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Welch, son James, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Welch, Manawa; Miss Betty Schwann, Stevens Point; Miss Honor Welch, Wausau; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welch, Pittsville; Mr. and Mrs. L. McNutt, Antigo; Mrs. Lowell Larson and sons of Aurora, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Welch, Mrs. Elsie McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fraas and daughter, Jean, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dewey and son, Lawrence, Green Bay; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Welch and son, Lowell, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Welch and son, Andrew and Kenneth, of this city. A daughter, Marilyn Ruth, was born Saturday evening, Aug. 7, at the New London Community hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Max Bloch of this city.

Model Boat Race To be Staged as Labor Day Event

Contest Will be Open to All Youngsters Under 16, Committee Decides

Neenah—A feature of Labor day events in connection with the National Rowboat Derby here will be a model boat exhibition and race at Riverside park it was decided at a meeting of the committee this morning at Valley Inn.

Neenah Lions club will have complete charge of activities and preliminary plans for the day's activities have been formed. A. G. Prunuske is general chairman and Donald McMahon is in charge of publicity. Floyd Bricknell and A. A. Hennig are in charge of finances. Arrangements and program will be handled by George Pratt, C. M. Jensen, Dr. F. J. Seimerson and Harold Gray.

The boat building contest will be open to youths under 16 years old. Any kind of a boat may be entered as long as the entrant plans and builds the boat at home. Prizes will be awarded for the best boats in the various classes and races will be held. Home made sailboats will not compete with those which have been commercially made. McMahon said. Boys or girls who wish to enter are urged to contact some member of the committee some Monday and to start building his boat at once.

Yachts to Race

Other features will include yacht races sponsored by the Neenah Nodaway Yacht club, motor boat races sponsored by the Neenah Boating club, a canoe race, novelty row boat races, miniature sailboat races and an exhibition of a diving helmet by Edward Richter, Neenah, who has built his own equipment.

A meeting of the executive committee in charge of the drive for Winnebago land, Inc. memberships to finance the rowboat derby will be held today. Committees will be appointed, and members of the various service clubs and the Neenah Advancement association will be assigned to contact citizens.

Menasha Society

St. Mary Band to Perform at Park

School Musicians to Present 6th Concert of Summer Series Wednesday

Menasha — The St. Mary High school band, directed by G. W. Unser, will be heard in a concert at 7:30 tomorrow night at Smith park, the sixth in the summer series. Tomorrow night's concert will be the first presented in the park, the others having been held either on the city square or at the Brin theater corner.

L. E. Kraft, director of the Menasha High school band, said this morning that the young musicians are now on vacation until school starts next month. The band members have had a busy summer, appearing at the Lions convention in Chicago and at home concerts.

About 15 of the musicians who were with the band when it won fourth place in the national contest at Chicago are 1937 graduates and have finished their high school music work. The band had a total membership of 75 on its Chicago trip.

Magnusen Sounds Death Knell to Pinball Games

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—All pinball machines and similar devices must be removed from Winnebago county by Sunday, Aug. 15; after that date they will be confiscated and demolished, Lewis C. Magnusen, district attorney, said today.

His action followed the passage of a resolution by the Winnebago county board at its last meeting backing up the district attorney's office and Sheriff Paul Neubauer in a campaign to clear the county of gambling devices. District Attorney Magnusen stated he has already given the sheriff's department orders to start picking up the machines immediately after the Aug. 15 deadline.

Tissue Mills Case to Be Tried Wednesday

Menasha — Charged with violation of the city smoke and soot ordinance, the Wisconsin Tissue Mills will be the defendant in a case that will come before Justice Arthur Ales tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

After residents in the vicinity of the mill complained of the smoke and soot, the city council authorized City Attorney Edward McKenzie to order the company to remedy the situation. The company did not take action, the city claims, in seeking enforcement of the ordinance. The case was adjourned two weeks ago.

Elect Neenah Man to Legion District Post

Neenah—John A. Meyer, 216 S. Lake street, Neenah, was named vice commander of the sixth district Tuesday at the American Legion convention at Milwaukee. Meyer is a member of James P. Hawley post, Neenah a former post and county commander. Irving Sherman, Brillion, was elected commander of the district.

Frank Schneller, Neenah, and C. B. Anderson, were chosen to represent the sixth district at the American Legion national convention in New York in September.

Neenah Personals

Miss Ruth Ann Schmidt, Neenah, returned here Tuesday after visiting for two weeks at Milwaukee and Racine.

Mrs. Eva Rucci, 1220 Harrison street, Neenah, underwent a major operation at Theda Clark Memorial hospital this morning.

Scientists Teach Rats To Obey Traffic Lights

By The AP Feature Service Lincoln, Neb.—Brother rat can be taught some fancy tricks, but it takes patience.

He'll even observe traffic signals, two University of Nebraska psychologists find, if you just give him time.

Experiments conducted by Dr. W. E. Walton and R. W. Bernemier show that rats can distinguish between red and green "stop-go" lights after a certain amount of coaxing.

The scientists put food behind a green light and a trap-door behind a red one. After 600 trials, their university-trained rats learned to jump for the green light—and dinner.

Marriages Bring New Prosperity To 'Reno' of 90's

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Cupid has stolen top billing from Ol' Man Divorce in this one time "prairie Reno."

But old timers recall with relish anecdotes of the discontented wives and husbands who flocked here from nearly every state, from Europe, and even the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands between 1890 and 1907.

South Dakota's liberal divorce laws of that day brought them, and attorneys, commonly referred to the city as "Sue Falls."

Fires of the cases for that era display threads of humor in the tapestries of marital tragedy.

A bride left her husband after two weeks "because he was insincerely jealous of the milkman." A Wisconsin buttermaker complained his wife had only taken two baths since their marriage. An Englishman came here to free himself from a wife "who put her cold feet on me in bed."

Today, due to Iowa and Minnesota laws which require a 5-day waiting period before marriages, Sioux Falls is the mecca of hundreds of brides and grooms each year.

TARRED, FEATHERED

Herbert Harris, 41, of New Haven, Mo., was tarred, feathered and dumped out of an automobile at Dallas, Tex., after he had shown films pleading the cause of organized labor. He is shown holding his clothes in his right hand.

Games to Feature Marathon Picnic

Baseball, Horseshoe Pitching Planned for Outing Saturday

Menasha—Three baseball games and a horseshoe pitching tournament will feature the annual picnic for Marathon Paper company employees which will be held Saturday afternoon and evening of this week.

Two baseball contests will be played in the morning to determine finalists for the championship game in the afternoon. At 9 o'clock the office will meet the carton division and at 10:30 the wax division will play the paper mill. The winners will face each other in the headline tilt at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Ed Fisher will defend his horseshoe pitching title which he won last year. Competition in this event will be held throughout the day.

Ferdinand Jung is general chairman on arrangements for the picnic at which more than 2500 persons are expected. Races and contests for children and adults and a dance in the evening at the park pavilion will be held.

Mabel Jensen in Finals Of Women's Net Tournney

Neenah—Mabel Jensen yesterday defeated Eva Jensen to reach the finals in the Neenah women's singles tennis tournament at the high school courts. Miss Jensen will meet the winner of the Helen Graef-Jeanette Bylow semi-final match. In the quarters, Miss Graef defeated Edna Swentner. Last year's champion and Miss Bylow won over Dorothy Wiberg.

COUPE WAS CROWDED

Warren, O.—(U)—The law allows only three persons to ride in a coupe, so when Policeman W. A. Salen noticed that John Comanescu's single-seater looked a trifle crowded, he halted it to investigate.

Passengers, mostly children, piled out.

Salen lined 'em up. He counted eighteen.

Warships Given Rigid Tests in Penobscot Bay

All New Vessels Undergo Trials Off Maine Coast

Rockland, Me.—(U)—Penobscot Bay on the Maine coast provides Uncle Sam the ideal testing ground for his fighting ships.

Nowhere else along the Atlantic coastline does the expanse of sea and the water's depth combine with proximity to mainland and deep water base to permit so well trails of sleek, gray destroyers and men of war.

All new vessels undergo trials on what is known as the Rockland measured mile course.

Smoke trials left by a ploughing cruiser provide those ashore with the only indication that a $10,000,000 ship may be going through a series of standardization trials that rack her rivets and structure and every integral part from stem to stern.

Navy Keeps Secrets

A technical group of navy experts, known as a "trial board," supervise the test, but these tight-lipped gentlemen come ashore with never a word as to the results. The navy keeps its secrets.

Aside from ordinary test for speed, oil consumption and other standardization paces, the ship must conform to rigid requirements laid down by technicians.

Among these are "turning a corner" with the rudder flung hard down at full speed. Or the massive craft may "put on the brakes" with both anchors dropped while she travels at top speed.

For the conduct of speed tests, the course is "measured" by four land beacons, visible by day, lighted by night.

Two outside beacons, those nearest the sea, stand on islands. Inside beacons perch just opposite on the shore.

When a "sight" by ship's officers shows the outer beacon lined up with its higher, mainland mate, the vessel begins its measured mile test, completed when it passes the line made by the other two beacons.

Leaping Manhole Cover Wrecks Fender of Auto

Bozeman, Mont.—(U)—Imagine the surprise of Virginia Willson when the street flew up and demolished the front fender of her car!

"It wasn't really the street," explained Miss Willson. "It was a manhole cover. When the front wheel ran over it, the cover flew upward and after tearing the fender to pieces rolled down the street."

City employees welded the heavy top back in place to prevent a repetition.

8-Year-Old Prince Shows Paris to His 2-Year-Old Brother

Paris—(U)—Eight-year-old Moulay Hassan, Crown Prince of the Moroccan Empire, has been showing the town to his 2-year-old brother.

Prince Hassan, who is a colonel in the crack black guard of his father, the Sultan of Morocco, explains that his brother, Moulay Abdallah, "must be looked after."

Moulay, heir to the throne of Morocco, made several appearances here with his father, Sultan Sidi Mohammed, and General Auguste Nogues, Governor-General of Morocco, notably at the Paris Exposition and the Bastille Day parade.

Moulay Hassan is proud of the medals he has won in horse races, but in Paris, besides perfecting his swimming strokes, he wanted to visit the large department stores and buy "lots of drums and toys."

Three times weekly the young prince studies Arab and French. He likes to play tennis, swim, and ride. In the evenings he studies the Koran.

American Loom Helps Chinese Wool Industry

Nanking—(U)—The inventor of the Churchill loom in Berea, Ky., has helped China develop form virtually nothing a wool industry that is overcoming unemployment created when the silk market nearly vanished in 1929.

By permitting the Chinese to adopt his loom for domestic needs he substantially aided the University of Nanking and the city government in their wool enterprise.

The project expected to develop a cooperative co-partnership between workers and consumers. The center has produced some 100 kinds of materials but is concentrating on tweeds, serge, blanketing, overcoating and material for uniforms.

Building Wrecker Tears Down the Wrong House

Fairmont, Ill.—(U)—It still happens—the contractor who tears down the wrong house.

When Mrs. Emma Otis of Fairmont went out to her neat little 6-room farm house she found it two-thirds dismantled. A contractor was hauling away materials for use in building a negro tabernacle.

The contractor shook his head, looked across the road at the dilapidated building originally constructed for and said weakly, "yep, looks like I tore down the wrong house all right."

Winnebago County Fair Will Open at Oshkosh August 31

Free Acts to Compare With Any in State, Secretary Claims

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh — Confident that the free attractions at the 1937 Winnebago county fair will compare with any county fair in the state and not suffer by comparison with the Wisconsin state fair, T. G. Brown, secretary, said today he has definitely lined up a complete program of headliners for this year.

The Winnebago county fair will open at Oshkosh Tuesday, Aug. 31, and extend through Sept. 3. In addition to attractions already announced, Brown said he had tentatively planned to include a series of "derby-style" running races at the 1937 fair. These races, run with real jockeys, will probably be held on Friday, Sept. 3.

Brown, who served as judge of horses Saturday at the Seymour fair, will act in the same capacity next week at the Marathon county fair. He states this will make a total of 11 county fairs he has acted as an official at this year.

The headliners for the 1937 Winnebago county fair, Brown said, will be Ernie Young's famous "Trip Around the World" with a cast of 50 nationally known stage stars.

Girls from Holland Another feature booked for this year's fair will be the Hazel Mangerson Girls, who will come direct to Winnebago county from Holland after having been headliners in practically every European country for the past four years. Their appearance in Oshkosh will be the first showing in this part of the country.

One act the children will enjoy, Brown predicts, is the almost human ape, Tarzan, who is trained by Felix Patti, French animal trainer. An unusual attraction booked is Large and Morgan, who have but two legs between them.

A clown act which will get a big hand from the spectators is that of Shorty Flemm, called "the little fellow with the big act." Flemm jumps from one costume to another and dashes here and there.

Years ago the crowd thrilled to the sharpshooting of Buffalo Bill, but at the 1937 fair, Brown says, a woman named Edna Alee shows just as many tricks. Miss Alee is acclaimed the greatest woman rifle and pistol shot in the world and during her act cuts an ordinary playing card in two with a bullet, shoots through the hole of a phonograph record, and hits bullseyes from almost any angle.

For people musically minded, Brown predicts the Dobas Troupe will please. They come to Oshkosh direct from their native Hungary and feature teeter-board work and performance on a high perch pole.

With them is Miss Betty Reed, called the greatest female xylophone artist in America.

Sell Car Rails to Appleton Company

Paving Contract to Remove Commercial Street Tracks

Neenah—Street car rails totaling 39.48 tons were sold last night to I. Bahcall, Inc., Appleton, who submitted a bid of $16 per ton at a meeting of the committee on public improvements in the council chambers in city hall.

The rails, now embedded in N. Commercial street, will be removed by the paving contractor and placed at the side of the road where they will be picked up by the Appleton company. Other bids submitted include: J. Stone and Son, Neenah, $13.75 per ton; and Block Salvage and Supply company, $14.25 per ton.

Assessments against property owners on N. Commercial street from N. Water street to Nicolet boulevard were verified at last night's meeting. No objections were heard from property owners.

Postpone Playground Football Tournament

Neenah — Because of the hot weather, plans for a football tournament for youngsters participating in the playground program have been postponed, according to Armin Gerhardt, playground director.

The tournament will be conducted as soon as the weather is cooler. Kite flying contests are still in progress at all Neenah parks. Playground and city champions will be named this week, the director said.

Tentative plans for a field day and track meet for youngsters from Washington, Doty and Columbia parks are being made. Prizes and trophies will be awarded to champions in all events.

Neenah Park Dance to Be Held in Pavilion

Neenah—The regular Neenah park dance will be held at Riverside pavilion at 7:30 this evening. Dance music will be furnished by Edward Spoo and his high school orchestra. Dancing will continue until 11:30. Chaperons will be Armin Gerhardt, Florence Koepsel, Oberreich and Ivan Williams, playground directors.

Weather Study of Commercial Value Only 60 Years Old

McMahon Describes Development of Meteorology at Lions Meeting

Neenah — The development of weather prediction, its history and its commercial value was discussed by Donald McMahon, Neenah, at a regular meeting of the Neenah Lions club Tuesday noon at the Valley Inn.

Mr. McMahon has made an exhaustive study of meteorology and its relation to weather prediction and acquainted Lions with facts about the weather its relation to commerce and transportation.

Explaining why the human race failed to compile knowledge of the weather until recent years, the speaker said, "Early man's greatest fear was the weather. He stood in awe when the lightning flashed, when it thundered or when a terrific storm lashed the earth. He couldn't understand or control the elements as he eventually controlled other dangers."

Franklin First "This situation prevailed through the centuries until a few men began to study the earth and sun and stars, Benjamin Franklin and his brother were probably the first men in the United States who kept track of the weather or attempted prediction."

"Air, water and land were studied for many centuries but the study of atmospheric conditions and the development of weather bureau of commercial value is only 60 years old. The need of knowing what the weather would be on a certain day at a certain place hurried its development."

"Today an intricate network of bureaus all over the world predict the weather accurately from six to eight hours in advance. Predictions are broadcast over radio to ships at sea and planes in the air. They are telegraphed to newspapers all over the country with a fair degree of accuracy. Communities now are usually warned of all major storms such as cyclones, tornadoes, hurricanes or typhoons," McMahon said.

Explains Phenomena Facts about the weather were explained by the speaker. Warm air holds more moisture than cool air, he said, and when the air is saturated with moisture at a certain degree of temperature and is chilled by cold air rushing in from a high pressure area, precipitation of rain is caused.

Storms are caused by the movement of air from high to low pressure areas. The greater the difference between the high and low areas, the greater the violence of the resulting storm.

Prolonged periods of hot weather are caused by the lesser movements of the atmosphere in the summer as compared to the winter. Mr. McMahon also explained the difference between various types of clouds and the comparative movements of high and low pressure atmospheric conditions.

Doty Park 12-Year Team Wins Softball Pennant

Neenah—Doty park softballers in the 12 year class clinched the title in the playground league yesterday by defeating Washington park, 18 and 16, at Washington park. Forming the battery for the winners were Ginnow and Handler. The batters for the Washington park team was Kaatz and Hansen. Washington park will meet the Greens team in the playoff for second place Friday afternoon.

SAECKER WINS

Neenah — Wesley Saecker, Neenah, defeated Dave Lenz, Neenah, in a second round match of the vice president's flight of the annual golf tournament at Ridgeway Golf club yesterday afternoon. The second round of play began this week.

Neenah's Seventh Annual Pet, Hobby Show to be Held at Riverside Park

Neenah—Neenah's seventh annual Pet and Hobby show will be held at Riverside park Sunday Aug. 22, climaxing the summer play program.

The show will be open to all Neenah children who have hobbies or pets from saving stamps to collecting stones or from angelfish to dogs. Judging will begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the show will close about 6 o'clock in the evening.

A high class dog act has been secured and will appear for two performances, one in the afternoon and another at the close of the show. Trophies and prizes will be presented following the final dog act.

Prepare Rules Rules governing entries will be announced in a few days, according to the committee. An unusual amount of interest has been aroused among children this year and entries in the show are expected to exceed all previous records.

The committee this year is making every effort to make the show a better one than last year. Bleachers with ample seating arrangements will again be erected for the convenience of spectators. In other years the show was conducted in the afternoon and evening. The hours have been limited to the afternoon this year to prevent unnecessary fatigue on the parts of entrants and spectators.

Street Department Starts Repair of Damaged Pavement

Neenah—Street department workmen have started repairing the hole in the pavement at the corner of Nicolet Boulevard and Ahnapp street.

The pavement buckled under the weight of a heavy crane used in sewer construction work several weeks ago. Underneath the street at that point is an old cistern built for fire protection years ago.

The contractors, G. R. Fehr company of Milwaukee, whose machine caused the cave-in, have disclaimed any liability for repairing the street. At the last council meeting, City Attorney Edward McKenzie pointed out the traffic hazard that existed and the liability the city would face if anyone was injured, the aldermen ordered the street department to make the repairs and charge it to the Twin City sewage commission.

An improvement on school property was made today by the street department. Several stumps on the Buttes des North school grounds were removed.

Firemen Respond to Nine Alarms in July

Neenah—The city fire department answered nine alarms during the month of July, according to a report released today by Fire Chief Paul Theimer.

There were no false alarms during the month and no out-of-city trips. The department made one rescue call. Damage from fires to which the department was called amounted to $498. Other fire damages in the city were appraised at $8.

Youngster Wanders But Police Find Him

Neenah — Junior Konkol, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Konkol, 312 Oak street, wandered away from home a few moments before the storm broke this morning and was the object of a half-hour's search by parents, police, and neighbors.

He was found by police in a home on Keys street where he had taken refuge from the rain and was returned in the squad car safely to his parents.

Menasha Council Grants Petition For New Street

Sewer, Water Service Assured for Residents In 2-Block Area

Menasha—Assurance that a new street will be put through from Sixth to Eighth street between Appleton and De Pere and that city improvements such as sewer, water, curb, and sidewalk will be made in those two blocks was given by the council to the affected property owners in a special meeting last night.

Alderman M. J. Grode, acting as mayor in the absence of Mayor Walter E. Held, appointed Aldermen Philip Michalkiewicz and George Weisgerber and City Attorney Edward McKenzie as a committee to draw up the easements with the residents in the two blocks whose property will border the new street.

Seven or eight of the residents were present at last night's meeting to urge that such action be taken and to advise the council that they would be willing to pay for the regular city improvements.

$136 Per Lot It was estimated at the meeting that there will be about 700 feet of lots on either side of the street. According to City Clerk Walter Dougherty, the cost of installing improvements on a 50-foot lot amounts to $136.

Last night's special meeting was called following an inspection Saturday afternoon of that vicinity in the north part of the city made by members of the council, and planning commission.

Alderman George Stip introduced a resolution authorizing the street department to start work on the improvement of terraces on Broad street torn up by sewer excavations. It was three weeks ago, Stip said, that the council gave the contracting company 10 days in which to take action on the matter and nothing has been done. The street committee will move from Broad street to other streets in need of similar work and will charge expenses to the Twin City Sewage commission.

At the suggestion of Alderman Edward Zeiminger, the council voted to advertise for coal for heating of city buildings, bids to be due at the first meeting in September. Dealers will quote on the basis of 100 tons.

Menasha—Miss Vivian Knorr of this city and her house guest, Miss Dorothy Pikas of Western Springs, Ill., defied yesterday's warm weather, took their bicycles, and pedaled around Lake Winnebago in less than 10 hours. They covered 80 miles.

Neenah Chinese Band Wins First At Legion Meeting

Softball Squad Loses in First Round of Tournament at Milwaukee

Neenah—First place in the novelty band competition in the American Legion parade at Milwaukee was awarded to the Chinese band of the James P. Hawley post of Neenah.

The band was headed by Fred Schmidt, director; William Draheim, business manager; George Rasmussen, quartermaster. Other members include Leo Madison, R. A. Vanderwalker, Edward Jahns, Herbert Dorow, John Christian, Albert Cummings, Leonard Koepke, Charles Sorensen, Jr., Fred Bentzen, Ollie Kuehl and Edward Nielsen.

The Milwaukee parade was the second major event in which the Neenah band participated, the other being the sixth district conference parade at Campbellsport in June.

A softball team representing the Neenah post was defeated by a West Allis team, 8 to 6, in a first round game of the softball tournament Monday at Maitland field. The West Allis team went on to win the state legion title. Members of the Neenah team are Carl Gerhardt, Emmet Wood, Joseph Muench, Al Witt, Peter Abraham, Ollie Kuehl, James Christofferson, S. Martin, A. A. Hennig and Otto Lierzer.

Injury to Collins May Ruin Bruin's Pennant Chances

First Sacker Breaks Bone In Leg; Drove in Many Runs

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

An accident may have accomplished what the combined efforts of seven major league clubs couldn't bring about—ending the Chicago Cubs' hold on first place in the National league.

Today, its true enough, the Bruins still are six games up on the Giants. But as they resume their series with the Pittsburgh Pirates they do so in the knowledge that for the next month they will have to struggle along without the services of Jim (the Ripper) Collins, fancy-fielding, run-producing first baseman who was such a valuable factor in their climb to the top and their ensuing stay there.

Have Bounced Back
Like the New York Yankees, the Cubs have managed to bounce back from previous injuries and illnesses. But it will take a lot of bouncing to make up for the loss of Collins. There are harder hitters in the senior circuit than the Ripper. When the first baseman, a bone in his right ankle fractured, was carried to the dressing room at Wrigley field yesterday, he had a batting average of .278.

The batting average, though, fails to show that Collins was fifth in the league in driving in runs, that he had clouted fifteen homers, that his defensive work had been just what Dr. Grimm ordered when he got the Ripper from the St. Louis Cardinals last winter in a deal that also involved Lonnie Warneke and Roy Parmelee.

With the last third of the campaign in sight—the Cubs' 6-5 defeat by the Pirates yesterday was their one hundredth game, and Collins had been in every one—the first base portfolio must be entrusted to Phil Cavaretta, part-time outfielder whose fielding average in 1936, when he played in 115 games at first base, put him in seventh place among the regular incumbents.

Danny Beats Giants
While the Cubs were bowing to the Pirates and Al Todd's four-run homer, the Boston Bees kept them from losing any ground to the New York Giants. Danny MacFayden put an effective six-hit dapper on the Terrymen that stopped them, 6-1.

Meanwhile, Cardinal Warneke moved a victory ahead of teammate Dizzy Dean by handcuffing Cincinnati 3-2, with six hits for his thirtieth triumph, and Brooklyn whipped Philadelphia 7-2, to inch a step further away from the gap in national league cellar.

In the American league, Washington went off on a scoring spree that produced victories over the Philadelphia Athletics by 15-7 and 8-8 and brought them within a game of fifth place. The Chicago White Sox moved into third, half a game and one percentage point ahead of Detroit, by noosing out Mickey Cochrane's crew, 6-4.

The Yanks and Boston Red Sox, in Boston, and the St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians, in Cleveland, were rained out.

RIP COLLINS HURT AS CUBS LOSE

Jim "Rip" Collins, first baseman and sparkplug of the league leading Chicago Cubs, suffered a fractured ankle in the first inning of the opening game of the Cub-Pirate series. Dr. John F. Davis, team physician, said Collins might be out "one month or more." This picture shows the play in which Collins was hurt as his spikes caught in the dirt and he started to slide into home plate. Todd is the Pirate catcher and Sears the umpire. Pittsburgh won the game, 6 to 5.

State League Notes

PLAYING their best ball of the season, the Green Sox won two games over the weekend and moved up into first place in the Northern State league pennant chase. The Bays whipped Manitowoc, 3 to 0, and downed Kaukauna 7 to 6.

The Bays had a miserable first half and finished in a tie for the bottom of the heap but it was predicted all around the circuit that if the Sox got any pitching, they would go places and that is just what is happening right now.

Johnny Rowe looks like his old self and his four-hit victory over Manitowoc was a hurling masterpiece. Porky Penzenstadler, the other Sox slabster, came through with bells on against Kaukauna even though he was touched for nine bingles.

The excursion to Wausau must have done Harlan Bohne, youthful Two Rivers hurler, a lot of good, because he turned in his best exhibition of the season last Sunday when he dipped the Little Chutes in whitewash by a 5 to 0 count.

The Icebergs played errorless ball behind Bohne and he breezed through without much trouble. The Cool City recruit whiffed nine and only gave two walks. None of Little Chute's five hits were for extra bases.

Dick Weisberger, the Hollanders' hurler, was not as effective as usual. Two Rivers got to him for 11 bingles and these walks included two sacker by Captain Eddie Raab and Chet Smogoleski, the heavy hitting left fielder.

Manager George Vanderloop of the Chuters juggled his battle front again in a futile attempt to find a combination. It was the fifth straight defeat in the second half and some of the Little Chute fans are starting to wolf a bit.

Ham Powell, the Kaukauna shortstop, returned to the battle front after a week off while the shortstop arrived. The vacation did not stop up Powell's play as he was all over the field against Green Bay besides helping himself to a safety.

Manitowoc had a bumper crowd at the "booster" game with Green Bay. The fair grounds grandstand was well filled with some 1,500 spectators. Mayor Art Schuetz directed the ticket sales drive and did a splendid job.

The Shipbuilders, after bowing to the Sox at home, hustled over to Kimberly and administered an 8

Dorais, Detroit U. Mentor, Named All-Star Coach

Waldorf, Layden, Phelan And Moore Complete Staff for Game

CHICAGO—(AP)—Charles E. (Gus) Dorais of the University of Detroit, will head the board of strategy for the College All-stars in their charity battle against the Green Bay Packers, national professional football champions, at Soldier Field Sept. 1.

Dorais, whose Titan teams have won no national titles, but who received solid support from his own state and batches of votes from other parts of the country, won the assignment of heading the college coaching staff by amassing 5,269,179 points in a nation-wide poll during the past two weeks.

His assistants will be Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern university, and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, both of whom served with head coach Bernie Bierman of Minnesota for last year's All-star game; Jimmy Phelan of Washington, and Bernie Moore of Louisiana State university.

Waldorf was second in the voting with 4,011,108 points. Layden had 3,464,384. Phelan, whose Washington eleven gained the Pacific Coast conference title, had 3,033,977, and Moore collected 2,521,941.

Dorais, head coach of Detroit since 1925, collaborated at Notre Dame with the late Knute Rockne in forming the first of football's famous forward passing combinations. In 1913, the pair, Dorais throwing and Rockne catching, staged an aerial assault against Army that produced a 35 to 13 triumph and made passing a major part of gridiron offense.

Dorais and his staff will take charge of the All-star squad of 65 men Saturday morning at Northwestern university where preparation for the battle will be started.

Forsters Defeated by Oshkosh Team in 14th

Court Taverners of Oshkosh and the Forster Taverners of Appleton battled 14 frames last night under lights at the Forster field before the invaders earned a 6 to 5 decision. The game featured a pitcher's battle with E. Muxa of the Oshkosh team fanning 15 and walking 5. Muxa fanned none and walking 2. Hiebel of the Forsters fanning 10 and walking 2.

Friday night the Two Rivers Junior Chamber of Commerce will invade Forster field. Claude LeClaire will hurl for the Rivers while Stan Tesch is the probable choice for the Forsters with Hiebel behind the plate.

Business men of Kaukauna are going to foot the bill for the Brewers' trip to the state baseball tournament in Milwaukee late this month. John Coppes is rounding up the funds for the Kaws and he is a pastmaster at getting the cash.

The Green Bay game was the first time this season that Sonny Carvenough, the Kaukauna slabster, was removed from the mound. Carvenough's curve ball was not breaking as usual and the Bays were hitting him hard in the pinches.

The feature game this weekend will be the first half title playoff between Manitowoc and Kaukauna in the Electric city at 3 p. m. These teams also meet in the morning at Manitowoc in their regular scheduled contest of the closing half.

Two Rivers will be at home again with the Kimberly Parkersmakers as their guests. The Icebergs are still very much in the pennant picture and Manager Morrie Brault will be pulling every string to chalk up another victory.

The Legion post is staging a two-day celebration at Little Chute and the league game between the Hollanders and Green Bay has

Braddock Greeted With "Hello Champ" by Louis

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mike Belois, the featherweight (he's champ in New York state) has whipped pneumonia and leaves the hospital today. . . . Nice going, Mike! . . . Tops in compliments was served up by Joe Louis. . . . When Jimmy Braddock, Louis' camp the other day, Louis greeted him: "Hello, champ." . . . Pretty neat, eh? . . . If the Jints buy Bucky Walters from the Phils this winter, don't forget you read it here in August. . . . Billy Scanlon, just 18, may become the country's youngest sports editor when he takes over a LaCrosse, Wis., paper soon.

Old Babe Ruth still is hollering his head off about his putting. . . . Note to Mickey Cochrane: Smiler Sognoosh, the six foot, one inch Indian pitcher from Wallaceburg, Ont., you are going to try out next spring, has a reach six inches longer than his height (according to reports). . . . Dumb Dan Morgan, one of the slickest fight managers in his day, now wears a stiff white collar and turned up hat and looks like a Sunday school teacher.

Mike Jacobs arises at 6 a. m., rain or shine, and often has his attorney, Sol Strauss, meet him again at the Almaco bar. . . . Which simply says Mr. Strauss, who likes to have his coffee in bed two hours later. . . . The boy the New York fight managers are squabbling over is Ray Matulevich, twice intercollegiate lightweight champion at Duke. . . . He won his first two pro fights in ten-round de-decisions; since then has put six straight opponents to sleep.

Don't be surprised if one of these days Maj. Bob Neyland of Tennessee sends for his former star quarterback, Gene McEver, now head coach at Davidson.

Mickey Owen of the Cardinals is beginning to make good on some of the nice things they said about him last spring. . . . Extra! Here's a guy who can stop Joe Medwick. . . . Orville Jorgens of the Phils gives Joe a base on balls, then generally catches him napping off the bag.

By the Associated Press
Danny MacFayden, Bees—Held Giants to six hits in 6-1 triumph.

Clint Brown, White Sox—Pitched no-hit ball in relief role and fanned three to check Tigers, 6-4.

Johnny Mize and Ducky Medwick, Cardinals—Combined to bat in three runs with two out for 3-2 victory over Reds.

Monte Weaver and Al Simmons, Senators—Weaver bagged double and scored two runs besides pitching team to 15-7 triumph in first game; latter drove in three runs with double and single in 8-6 nightcap win.

Lloyd Waner, Pirates—His second double of afternoon brought in run that topped Cubs, 6-5.

New York—Al Roth, 135, New York, outpointed Young Chappie, 133, Albany, (6).

Milwaukee Cops From Red Birds

Forest Pressnell Pitches And Bats Brewers To Victory

Chicago—(AP)—Roy Pfeiffer, Minneapolis' third baseman, was one up on his teammate, Red Kress today in their battle for the American Association home run leadership, and the Brewers were a game farther ahead of Columbus in the tussle for first place.

Pfeiffer slammed out his 25th round-tripper of the season last night to break a tie with Kress, as the Brewers whipped Louisville, 8 to 2, for their seventh straight victory.

The triumph, coupled with Columbus' 6 to 2 defeat at Milwaukee, increased the Brewers' margin over the Red Birds to 2 1/2 games.

Forest Pressnell combined hitting with pitching as Milwaukee downed Columbus. The righthander spaced 11 Red Bird hits, and drove in the winning run by singling in the second inning. The Brewers wasted few of their scoring opportunities, bunting eight hits off Morton Cooper and Max Lanier.

St. Paul and its stocky right-hander, Art Herring, tied two association clubbing records in blasting Indianapolis, 19 to 2. Herring, who held the Indians to eight hits, batted out four doubles to tie a mark previously equaled by Blondy Ryan before he left Milwaukee for New York Giants, and the Saints as a team, collected 10 doubles, matching the record set in 1929 by Columbus and tied by Milwaukee in 1935.

Toledo and Kansas City split a double header, the Blues taking the first game 9 to 2, and Toledo the second, 7 to 4.

Dorothy May Bundy On Tennis Squad for Wightman Cup Play

New York—(AP)—Dorothy May Bundy, heiress to family tradition of topnotch tennis, has been named with Alice Marble, Helen Hull Jacobs, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabry, Carolin Babeock, and Mrs. Margorie Gladman Van Ryn to the United States Wightman cup team, which will meet the British team at Forest Hills Aug. 20 and 21.

Miss Bundy's mother and father were both prominent in American tennis. Her mother, May Sutton Bundy, was national singles champion in 1904 and won the singles title at Wimbledon in 1905 and 1907. Thomas C. Bundy, her father, was a noted doubles player. He paired with Maurice E. McLoughlin, another Californian, to win the national championships in 1912, 1913, and 1914 as well as earn similar honors on Davis cup teams.

Elizabeth N. J.—Freddie Cochran, 140, Elizabeth, and Ralph Vona, fought a no-decision six-round-

GOLF RUNNERUP

Ordinarily you see a smile on the face of the young man above, a big smile, but why he frowned before the camera is a question. The young fellow is Joe Kohler, Appleton, who caddies at Riverview and at the municipal course and who Monday shot a 147 to take second honors in the annual state caddy meet at Brown Deer course, Milwaukee. The winner shot a 145. Joe will receive a trophy for his accomplishments. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Babson Sees Need Of New Outlook on Spiritual Values

Says Protestant Church Attendance Has Been Declining for Many Years

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass.—During recent weeks I have read several editorials congratulating our churches on their progress during these perilous times. I am loath to discourage those who have accepted these Polly-Anna reports; but I do believe many of my regular readers will be interested in my conclusions:

1. The so-called "church membership" figures published annually by the Christian-Herald and broadcasted by the Press associations are incorrect. They contain not only the names of millions who have repudiated the Church which they joined in their youth—but also millions who are dead and buried physically. 2. Protestant Church attendance has been falling off for many years. This may not show by recent statistics on church attendance at the Sunday morning service; but in many churches attendance at this Sunday service has been kept only by omitting the mid-week and evening services, and by closing down in summer-time. A record of the number of Protestants entering the churches during a year shows a constant falling off. This decline is taking place despite the fact that the Protestant population is increasing each year.

3. Sunday School attendance is also falling off. The Congregational Christian churches of which I am moderator have had a net loss of over 150,000 Sunday school scholars since 1925. At first I assumed this to be due to a serious drop in the birth rate among us indifferent Protestants; but study shows that the decline is primarily among those of high-school age and adults. The young children are still being sent to Sunday school to give fathers a chance to read the Sunday paper!

I have attempted to ascertain the reason for this collapse of Protestantism. Upon visiting the national headquarters of different denominations, the secretaries dispute my conclusions. When interviewing parents, they blame it onto the preachers, the latter in turn blame it onto the young people and the schools. The only fact all groups seem agreed upon is that "young people are more intelligent and enquiring today—they do not accept as readily what their grandparents did". Yet statistics show that the liberal churches such as the Unitarian have even greater trouble in holding their young people than do the Fundamentalists. So "creed" is not the real reason.

Visits Colleges
Determined to find the cause, I devoted the month of May, 1937 to visiting twenty prominent Protestant colleges, most of which were started many years ago by ministers and earnest church people. To my great surprise, these colleges were having their troubles also. Attendance at chapel has fallen off tremendously and there is an indifference toward religious instruction. Although the colleges of the Middle-West have a more religious atmosphere than most New England colleges, all educational institutions are losing control of their young people.

Unlike the denominational secretaries, and the preachers and parents, these young people gave me a definite reason for their lack of interest in their churches. They stated kindly and diplomatically that we church-goers appear to them to be a group of hypocrites! They cannot connect our mode of living and methods of doing business with the teachings of Jesus whom we claim to follow. They do not understand how we can attend church, sing the hymns, and make the prayers which we do on Sundays, and then act as we do the other six days of the week. As a result of this inconsistency on our part, they ask: "What use is the church?"

The troubles from which our churches are suffering are due to the fact that Protestant young people are "getting their eyes open" and are beginning to think for themselves. Furthermore, the day is coming when Catholic young people will reach the same stage. In fact, the Catholic church probably has its troubles ahead so that they need do no bragging now. Young people insist that for the church to interest them, we laymen must be better men, better employers and workmen, better parents and neighbors than those who do not go to church. In short, we laymen must take our religion seriously and pay the price if the church is to continue to grow.

My answer to these criticisms is that we laymen are living and doing business in a competitive world. We can be a little more generous than the non-churchman; but if we really follow Jesus we would be like the poor and helpless disciples of His day. To this these students almost unanimously retorted: "Then why not try to change the prevailing economic system? If you cannot not worship both God and Mammon under the present system of industrialism, capitalism, and nationalism you can at least take sides with those who are trying to change the system."

It, of course, is true that our churches must cease being only social clubs and we laymen must be known by a stronger character and good works. Young people and all other people must realize, however, that men cannot be reformed by mere legislation or even education. The American Magazine does not even realize this, as shown by their recent article on the subject.

We must be "born-again". The hearts of people must be changed in order for any social or other system to succeed. This is a spiritual problem. Here is where America again needs the churches, family prayers, Sunday observance, Bible study, and the Ten Commandments. Therefore, when we criticize the church and note how it is declining in behaviour and influence, we must not forget that the world still needs it. The church continues to be the basic agency through which civilization will be saved. The world is still ruled by feelings rather than by figures.

Study May Force New State Rule on Factory Hygiene

Extensive Research Under Way in Wisconsin Manufacturing Plants

Madison—Recommendations for revision of the industrial commission's general orders on industrial hygiene will be made as the result of researches underway by a new state agency, the industrial hygiene section of the state board of health, organized three months ago.

This new unit is making an exhaustive study of all the menaces which endanger the lives of the 400,000 workers in the hundreds of industrial establishments in the state, analyzing the dusts, gases, fumes and other hazards to life and health. Visiting representative establishments throughout Wisconsin, workers in the new division are taking samples of the air and fumes breathed by workers, and scientifically analyzing them.

The studies made thus may lead the industrial commission, entrusted by statutes to watch over the welfare of industrial employees, to change some of its orders, which date back 25 years. They will probably result in the development of additional safeguards, with the cooperation of the employers.

The work is financed by federal social security act appropriations.

and is supervised by the state and federal health authorities. Wisconsin's industrial hygiene unit is one of 28 in 28 industrial states.

The new state agency is headed by Dr. Paul Brehm, former Milwaukee practicing attorney, who has been thoroughly schooled in his job by federal hygiene workers. Two assistants will tour the state with him, examining with minute care all the important manufacturing establishments in Wisconsin.

The two assistants are young engineers, recent University of Wisconsin graduates, Harold W. Ruff of Green Bay, and William Fluck of Algoma. Ruff and Fluck will hike back and forth about the state, taking equipment with them to count dust, gauge the density of gases and fumes, and will carry back chemical samples to be analyzed in the state public health laboratory.

Use Modern Tools
The state board of health points out that although the industrial commission has had its own inspectors check on factory health hazards for many years, "these inspectors never had the training to gauge densities of dusts or gases. They were equipped mainly to determine whether factory exhaust systems were functioning efficiently."

With the new unit the most modern weapons of science and scientific workers will be brought to the task for a continuous study.

The United States Public Health service pointing out that 50,000,000 United States citizens toil in industries that have potential hazards, assigned a part of its study to Wis-

Urge Farmers to Check Spread of Cattle Disease

Numerous Outbreaks of "Pink-Eye" Reported in County and Vicinity

Outbreaks of a disease commonly called "pink-eye" of cattle but technically known as infectious keratitis are occurring on an increasing scale in Outagamie, Waupesa and Shawano counties, the department of agriculture and markets reported today to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. The condition in this county is not especially serious, Swanson said, but care should be taken as the disease is contagious.

It occurs as a result of being brought in by feeder cattle, by additions to herds, or as a result of the infection spreading in community pastures. Animals once affected, even though recovered, may be spreaders.

Pink-eye of cattle is not serious if attended to properly, it was pointed out by Dr. W. Wisnicky, state director of livestock sanitation. Where the disease is prevalent vaccination may be resorted to. All affected animals should be housed in semi-darkened quarters and referred to the local veterinarian for treatment, he said. Early treatment will result in recovery of practically all cases. If treatment is neglected, however, some of the affected animals will become blind. "Visit pastures frequently and observe all of the cattle to note if this disease has occurred," Dr. Wisnicky urged. "If its presence is detected the affected animals should be treated. Those showing no evidence of the disease can be given preventive vaccination."

He warned that no animals should be introduced into a herd or pasture having a history of infectious keratitis or "pink-eye."

County Receives Aid For Road Maintenance
A check for $6,343.62 has been received at the office of Miss Marie

Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, from the state trunk highway department for maintenance of state trunk highways in the county. The money has been placed in the county treasury.
